STATE OF COLORADO. OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
State of Colorado, ss:

CERTIFICATE.

I, James B. Pearce, secretary of state of the State of Colorado, hereby certify that the annexed is a full, true, and complete transcript of the senate joint memorial, by Senator Burger, which was filed in this office the 2d day of September, A. D. 1910, at 11.52 o'clock a. m., and admitted to record.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the State of Colorado, at the city of Denver, this 12th day of December, A. D. 1910.

[SEAL.]

JAMES B. PEARCE,
Secretary of State,
By THOMAS F. DILLON, Jr.,
Deputy.

Senate joint memorial by Senator Burger.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America:

Your memorialists, the Seventeenth General Assembly of the State of Colorado, do hereby submit, for your honorable consideration, the following memorial:

Whereas the soldiers who protected our frontier from 1865 to 1883 and rendered such valuable service and endured great hardships, many of them serving the best years of their lives, have been, in our opinion, unjustly neglected by this Government that they so bravely defended upon our frontier, making it possible for the present generation to develop the great resources of this western country; and

Whereas as many of those who participated in the struggle of protecting our families and property have passed away, and the few that yet remain will also cross the great divide to join their comrades on

"fame's eternal camping ground," we believe it to be the duty of this Government to care for those remaining and to see to it that none lack the necessities of life during the few years they will be with us on earth:

Therefore the Seventeenth General Assembly of the State of Colorado respectfully requests the passage of a bill giving to the remainder of the soldiers who served this Government of the United States 90 days or more, in actual service in the Indian wars, from 1865 to 1883, the same pensionable status as the Civil War or Spanish War veterans are so justly receiving at the hands of this Government.

STEPHEN R. FITZGARRALD,
President of the Senate.

H. L. LUBERS,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

SENATOR FROM ILLINOIS.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. President, on behalf of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, to which was referred Senate resolution No. 264, directing an investigation into certain charges made against WILLIAM LORIMER, a Senator from the State of Illinois, I submit the following report (No. 942) and ask that it be printed and lie on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, submits the following report.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. May I make the suggestion to the Senator whether it would not be wise to have merely the conclusions of the report read to the Senate? I merely suggest it for what it may be worth.

Mr. BURROWS. There will be no objection to printing the report in the Record.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Not at all.

Mr. LODGE. I ask that the report be printed in the Record. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts asks unanimous consent that the report be printed in the Record. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

The report this day submitted by Mr. BURROWS is as follows:

[Senate Report No. 942, Sixty-first Congress, third session.]

The Committee on Privileges and Elections, to whom was referred certain charges relating to the election of WILLIAM LORIMER, a Senator from the State of Illinois, by the legislature of that State, have had the same under consideration, and submit the following report:

On the 7th day of June, 1910, there was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections a memorial signed by one Clifford W. Barnes, as president of the Legislative Voters' League, of Chicago, Ill., alleging in substance that the election of WILLIAM LORIMER, a Senator from the State of Illinois, was secured by bribery. These charges are set forth at length in the proceedings of the Senate for June 7, 1910.

On the 20th day of June, 1910, the Senate adopted a resolution authorizing and directing said committee, or any subcommittee thereof, to investigate said charges. In pursuance of the authority conferred and direction given by the Senate in said resolution, a subcommittee was appointed, consisting of Mr. BURROWS, chairman; Mr. GAMBLE, Mr. HEYBURN, Mr. BULKELEY, Mr. FRAZIER, Mr. PAYNTER, and Mr. JOHNSTON.

It was thought by the subcommittee to be advisable to make this investigation at the city of Chicago, in the State of Illinois. Accordingly the subcommittee met in that city on the 20th of September, 1910, and proceeded to execute the order of the Senate.

A large number of witnesses were examined and all the available information which, in the judgment of the subcommittee, would be of any value in the investigation, was obtained and considered.

It appears from the evidence that Mr. LORIMER was elected a Senator from the State of Illinois on the 26th day of May, 1909, by a joint assembly of the two houses of the general assembly of the State of Illinois, receiving 108 votes out of 202 that were cast for the several candidates for that office, as follows:

Albert J. Hopkins	70
William Lorimer	108
Lawrence B. Stringer	24

VOTES REQUIRED TO ELECT.

The question is raised by counsel whether the language of the statute regulating the election of United States Senators requires that in order to elect a Senator the person elected must receive a majority of the votes of all the members elected to each house of the legislature, or whether it is sufficient if one person receives a majority of all the votes cast in the joint assembly, "a majority of all the members elected to both houses being present and voting." This question seems to have been decided by the Senate in the case of Lapham and Miller (Senate Election Cases, 697). In that case it was held that a majority of a quorum of each house is sufficient to elect, and in that decision the committee concur.

BRIBERY.

In a number of cases that have been before the Senate of the United States it has been held that to invalidate the election of a Senator on account of bribery it must be made to appear either—

(1) That the person elected participated in one or more acts of bribery or attempted bribery, or sanctioned or encouraged the same; or

(2) That by bribery or corrupt practices enough votes were obtained for him to change the result of the election.

At what was practically the outset of the investigation, counsel for the Chicago Tribune (who conducted the inquiry against Senator LORIMER) announced that he did not expect to connect Senator LORIMER with any acts of bribery, and upon this point the following took place (Record, p. 66):

"Senator HEYBURN. I would suggest it might be well for you here to state what you expect to prove, in order that we may apply the law as to such proof.

"Mr. AUSTRIAN. I expect to prove—

"Senator BULKELEY. Do you expect to connect Mr. LORIMER with this?

"Mr. AUSTRIAN. No, sir; not in that way at all.

"Judge HANECY. That is, you do not intend to connect Senator LORIMER?

"Mr. AUSTRIAN. I personally do not intend to connect Senator LORIMER. The statement made here by the witnesses that they had some talk with Mr. LORIMER, the committee will please understand, of course, these witnesses, I have never talked with—never talked with but two of the witnesses who will be called upon the witness stand.

"Judge HANEY. You do not claim that any witness will say that he ever talked with Senator LORIMER about money?

"Mr. AUSTRIAN. I know of no one.

"Judge HANEY. You say, in that connection, you said that they would show that they had some conversation with Senator LORIMER?"

"Mr. AUSTRIAN. Oh, they had, but what that conversation was I do not know.

"Judge HANEY. But not in relation to the payment of money or any corrupt practice, you do not mean?"

"Mr. AUSTRIAN. I should say not."

And that he did not contend that "he (Senator LORIMER) had anything to do with it." (Record, p. 80.)

It will be remembered that on the 28th of May, 1910, shortly after the charges appeared in the public press, Senator LORIMER in the open Senate denied any act of bribery on his part in connection with his election in the most emphatic terms, and demanded an investigation by presenting the following resolution (Cong. Record, vol. 45, pt. 7, p. 7020):

"IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES,
May 28, 1910.

"Mr. LORIMER submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate:

"Resolved, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections be directed to examine the allegations recently made in the public press, charging that bribery and corruption were practiced in the election of WILLIAM LORIMER to a seat in the United States Senate, and to ascertain the facts in connection with these charges, and report as early as possible; and for that purpose the committee shall have authority to send for persons and papers, to employ a stenographer and such other additional help as it shall deem necessary; and the committee is authorized to act through a subcommittee; and its expense shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate."

It should further be stated that there was no testimony offered during the investigation which would tend in the remotest degree to implicate Senator LORIMER in any personal act of bribery or attempted bribery or corrupt practices of any nature.

It is claimed, however, that several members of the legislature were, in fact, bribed to vote for Mr. LORIMER, and if established it remains to inquire whether a sufficient number of members of the General Assembly of the State of Illinois were bribed to vote for Senator LORIMER to render his election to that office invalid.

It was to this question that the evidence taken on the investigation was chiefly directed and the subcommittee, who made the investigation, not only heard the testimony, but observed the witnesses while on the stand, their demeanor while testifying, their apparent candor or want of candor in giving their testimony, and other indicia of the truth or falsity of the story they were telling.

Four members of the General Assembly which elected Mr. LORIMER testified to receiving money as a consideration for their votes. The members who thus confessed their own infamy were Charles A. White, Michael Link, H. J. C. Beckemeyer, and Daniel W. Holstlaw.

CHARLES A. WHITE.

The chief of these self-accusers and the one on whose testimony the whole fabric of the accusation largely depends was Charles A. White, a member of the lower house of the Illinois General Assembly. White seems to have developed early in his legislative career an insatiable desire to secure a pecuniary compensation for his official acts, and he also appears to have suspected his fellow members of the general assembly of being as corrupt as himself. He endeavored to induce the chairman of an important committee to defer reporting a bill, in order to extort money from those who were interested in its passage. After Mr. LORIMER had been elected to the Senate, White tried to obtain information from another member of the house whether money had not been used to promote Senator LORIMER's election. This inquiry not only shows his corrupt character, but also casts suspicion upon the truth of his story that he had been bribed to vote for the successful candidate for Senator.

After wasting his salary and other means in riotous living, White appears to have conceived the plan of claiming to have been bribed in connection with the senatorial election as a basis for extorting money from Senator LORIMER. This purpose he reveals to two of his friends and then attempts to put it into execution. In this he signally fails, as appears from the following correspondence:

O'FALLON, ILL., 12-4-09.

Hon. WM. H. LORIMER,
Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR SIR: I am preparing to place before the people of this country an article I have written giving my true experience as a member of the Illinois Legislature. The article will appear either in book form or will be published in one of the largest magazines in the United States.

I have just completed the manuscript, which contains about 30,000 words, giving in detail my absolutely true experiences as a member of the forty-sixth general assembly. As yet I have not closed a deal with any publishing house, but when my terms are acceptable will dispose of it.

I have been offered a sum sufficient to value the manuscript at about $2.50 per word.

Believing that you would be more than deeply interested in the works and actions of the members of the last session of the Illinois Legislature, owing to the fact that possibly your experience with that general assembly will be one of the questions freely discussed, and assuring you that I have severed all connections with the party leaders, as I am to be independent in the future in all my political dealings,

I am, respectfully, yours,

CHAS. A. WHITE.

(Record, p. 125.)

To this communication Senator LORIMER replied as follows:

Hon. CHARLES A. WHITE, O'Fallon, Ill.

MY DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your letter of December 4 in which you advise me that you have manuscript ready to place with publishers treating of your experience as a member of the Illinois Legislature. I would be very glad indeed to know of your success as an author.

With kindest personal regards, I am,

WILLIAM LORIMER.

Very truly, yours,

(Record, p. 164.)

Questioned by the committee as to his purpose in writing Senator LORIMER, Mr. White testified:

"Senator PAYNTER. If I understood you, Mr. White, correctly, that you hoped to get a letter from Senator LORIMER that you could use in connection with this publication?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Well, by that, I suppose that you expected a letter from Senator LORIMER that might aid to support your charges. Is that the hope you had in the matter?—A. Yes, sir; I had no evidence against Senator LORIMER directly, and had no dealings with him.

"Q. The letter recites in substance—I do not remember the exact language—that you had been made an offer or some inducement had been held out that indicated that the manuscript was worth $2.25 a word—or $2.50 a word, I mean. That is the language of it. I have been offered a sum sufficient to value the manuscript at about $2.50 per word. Suppose that Senator LORIMER had placed the same value upon the manuscript that you did, and had offered you $75,000, would you have taken it?—A. I would have let him have the manuscript.

"Q. For $75,000. Would you have accepted $75,000 if he had offered it to you?—A. I don't think I would; if I had I might have turned it over to somebody else.

"Q. You would have turned the money over to someone else?—A. I might have done that."

(Record, p. 126.)

Thereafter Mr. White attempts to sell his story to eastern publications, and subsequently did contract to sell it to the Chicago Tribune for the sum of $3,500, a part of White's agreement being that he will assist in substantiating the correctness of his story. This agreement was reduced to writing, and is as follows:

[Exhibit 5.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, OFFICE OF PUBLISHER,
Chicago, Ill., April 29, 1910.

To CHARLES A. WHITE:

You offered to sell to us for publication a story written by you, which story gives your experiences while a member of the house of representatives of Illinois during 1909-10, and giving also certain information as to what transpired by reason of your voting for certain measures, etc., while a member of such house.

We refused to pay you for that story or to print the same unless such story was verified and corroborated by persons selected by the Tribune.

J. KEBLEY,
Vice President Tribune Co.

CHICAGO, ILL., April —, 1910.

To THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, AND THE TRIBUNE CO.

GENTLEMEN: I have read the above and foregoing and agree to the terms thereof, and to accept the sums of money as therein set forth, and I further agree to devote my time and services to substantiate the story referred to as and when requested by you so to do and in such manner as you may direct.

CHAS. A. WHITE.

White's account of the alleged bribery of himself is given circumstantially and in detail, but in this he has been shown to have falsified in several important particulars concerning which he could not have been mistaken had his narrative been true. Among other things, he stated that Browne came to his room shortly before the election of Senator LORIMER and that two men named Yarborough were then in the room. But it was proved by two reputable and credible witnesses that on the evening in question one of these men was in Chicago.

Without further reference to the details of White's testimony, it may be said that after seeing, observing, and hearing this witness it was the opinion of a majority of the subcommittee that no credence ought to be given to any part of his testimony tending to establish the fact of bribery. And after carefully reading the testimony given by White in the investigation, a majority of the committee concur in the opinion of the subcommittee in that regard.

MICHAEL LINK.

According to the testimony of this witness, he was paid the sum of $1,000 by Lee O'Neil Browne some time after Mr. LORIMER had been elected to the Senate. He further testified that no money was paid or promised him before he voted for Mr. LORIMER; that he made up his mind as early as in the month of March, 1909, to vote for Mr. LORIMER if an opportunity for so doing should occur, and promised Mr. LORIMER his vote some time in advance of the election of a Senator. When accused of having received money for voting for Mr. LORIMER, he denied it. When summoned before a grand jury, he stated under oath that he had not received any money as a consideration for his vote for Senator. Following this statement he was compelled, by means fully set forth in his testimony, to retract his former statement and testify to having received money for his vote for Mr. LORIMER, as shown by the following:

"Cross-examination by Judge HANEY:

"Q. You are a farmer, I believe, are you?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. And have been all your manhood life?—A. All my life; born on a farm.

"Q. You have lived in Madison County for how long?—A. Twenty-three years.

"Q. You live out some distance from—A. (Interrupting.) A mile from Mitchell, a little station.

"Q. When were you first elected to the legislature?—A. In November, 1906.

"Q. Is it not a fact that everybody from the southern part of Illinois, Republicans and Democrats, who desire to meet each other at any place generally go to St. Louis?—A. Yes, sir; from time to time men for years have met members of the legislature there.

"Q. Was it very much easier to go to St. Louis than to any other town that has any hotel accommodations south of the central part of Illinois?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. It is very much easier to go there than from any other part of southern or central Illinois than it is to go to Chicago, isn't it—very much easier to go to St. Louis?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. It is practically a uniform practice, is it not?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. When anybody, for political or other reasons, wants two or three to get together for any purpose, they meet at St. Louis?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. That has been the case for a great many years?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did Tierney and White talk with you or come down there more than once?—A. Not White; Tierney was there the second time, and I pretty nearly forgot the incident, when I met him somewhere about Mitchell, about the station. I went in for my mail, or, perhaps, to buy something.

"Q. Did he try to get some information from you or try to get some admissions from you?—A. He certainly did.

"Q. Did he tell you that he was a detective connected with the Maguire & White Detective Agency, detectives for the Chicago Tribune?—A. No; he said he represented Gov. Deneen.

"Q. You were then summoned or told to come up here?—A. Yes, sir; by subpoena.

"Q. And you did come up?—A. I certainly came up.

"Q. When you came up where did you go?—A. I went to the Morrison Hotel.

"Q. Then did you go to the State's attorney's office?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. When you went to the State's attorney's office did you see Mr. Wayman, the State's attorney, or Mr. Arnold, or Mr. Marshall?—A. Mr. Arnold and Mr. Marshall, I think; I did not see Mr. Wayman.

"Q. Which one did you see?—A. I think it was Mr. Marshall, I am not positive; I rather think it was.

"Q. It was one of the assistant State's attorneys?—A. Yes, sir; one of the assistant State's attorneys.

"Q. Tell the conversation, the language used by each as nearly as possible, and if you can not do that, give the substance as nearly as you can.—A. Well, I had a conversation with Mr. Marshall something like this: He says to me, 'If I were you I would not be here telling damned lies before this grand jury; I would tell the truth.' Then I told him he would not tell me that outside very well or we might mix.

"Q. Had you been before the grand jury then?—A. I think I had; yes, sir.

"Q. What I want to do is to commence before—just before you were taken to the grand-jury room, and I would like to have you—A. (Interrupting.) I didn't have any particular conversation to my recollection with any one of the assistant State's attorneys.

"Q. You went there, you don't remember how, and was taken before the grand jury?—A. Yes, sir; when my turn came.

"Q. They asked you there in relation to your voting for Senator LORIMER for United States Senator?—A. I was in the grand-jury room; yes, sir.

"Q. That is what I wanted to know.—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. You were examined by whom?—A. By Mr. Wayman.

"Q. By Mr. Wayman himself?—A. By Mr. Wayman himself; yes, sir.

"Q. What did he ask in relation to that subject? I don't care about anything else.—A. He asked me if I voted for Senator LORIMER, and I told him yes. According to my recollection I told him, 'Certainly, I voted for Senator LORIMER and was proud of it; no excuses to make.'

"Q. What took place then? Did he ask you if you had been paid anything for voting for Senator LORIMER?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. What did you tell him?—A. I absolutely denied it.

"Q. You didn't tell this to Mr. Wayman individually, but in answering his question to the whole grand jury?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. All the conversation you had with Mr. Wayman in the grand-jury room was public conversation before the grand jury?—A. That is all at that time. I had some conversation—at that time—yes, sir—at that time.

"Senator BURROWS. State what you said before the grand jury.—A. Well, I answered questions, but I disremember what all the questions he asked me were.

"Senator BURROWS. State those you can remember and your replies.—A. I denied receiving any money for voting for Senator LORIMER.

"Judge HANEY. Then did you leave the grand jury room?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. After those different questions were asked you?—A. Yes, sir; at that time I did.

"Q. Do you remember what day of the week or day of the month that was you first went before the grand jury?—A. That was the 5th or 7th of May; it was right along there, the early days of May.

"Q. May of this year?—A. Yes, sir; May of this year.

"Q. When you left the grand-jury room were you put in the custody of an officer?—A. I certainly was.

"Q. Were you indicted at that time or was there any complaint or charge made against you at any place?—A. No, sir.

"Q. Who put you in charge of an officer?—A. Well, I presume Mr. Wayman did. To my knowledge I was in charge directly of an officer.

"Q. Who was the officer?—A. Well, there were two or three different officers.

"Q. The first one?—A. I disremember his name. Mr. O'Keefe was with me most of the time.

"Q. Was it Oake?—A. I think that is his name.

"Q. He was the first officer?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. He was a police officer, a Detective appointed to the State's attorney's office at that time?—A. Yes; I understood so.

"Q. Did he take charge of you at that time?—A. Certainly.

"Q. How long did you remain in his custody?—A. I disremember.

"Q. About?—A. The first night, I think, I went to dinner with him—the first night, I believe; that would be on Wednesday night of the week; and I remained in his custody and he kept his eye on me like I was a criminal. Oake would not allow me to telephone to friends, and was keeping his eye on me, and I was not allowed to discuss any matters at all.

"Q. Was he armed at the time, and did he take out his revolver and his billy and put them on the table in the hotel, so you could see them?—A. He did not, but other detectives did; I suppose he was armed, but I don't know to my knowledge.

"Q. Other officers did?—A. Other officers did.

"Q. Were you continuously in the charge of some officer of the State's attorney's office after that time?—A. I certainly was.

"Q. Up to what time?—A. Until I was permitted to go home on Saturday morning.

"Q. What day?—A. It was the week I was here; I disremember—it was from the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, or 9th, or something of that kind, of May.

"Senator BURROWS. It was Saturday morning of that week?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. You came up here what day of the week?—A. I came here Tuesday evening.

"By Judge HANEY:

"Q. You went before the State's attorney—went before the grand jury Wednesday morning, did you?—A. I believe so.

"Q. When you went back home again, did an officer go with you?—A. Not at that time.

"Did an officer from the State's attorney's office come down and get you afterwards?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. When, after that Saturday morning that you went home?—A. That was the—well—I wish to correct that. I got a subpoena served to me to go to Springfield on my return home Saturday evening of this week. I went to Springfield from this subpoena and acknowledged it, and a detective went home with me from Springfield and stayed with me.

"Q. That was a subpoena to appear before the grand jury at Springfield?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. When was that?—A. That was the week following I was here.

"Q. Was it the first of the week or the middle of the week or the last?—A. Well, I think it was on Monday following the Saturday I left Chicago.

"Q. When did you leave Springfield to go home? You got there Monday?—A. That evening.

"Q. Monday evening?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did an officer from the State's attorney's office of Cook County go with you back home from Springfield on Monday evening?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did he take you into custody?—A. Well, I was not arrested.

"Q. Did he stay with you there all the time?—A. He went to my house, but went to St. Louis, I believe, one day while at my house in the country; but he went home with me and stayed with me, but, of course, he went to St. Louis during one day.

"Q. He was with you wherever you went?—A. Yes, sir.

"Senator PAYNTER. Was that officer from Chicago or Springfield?—A. Chicago.

"Senator GAMBLE. How long was he with you?—A. Four days.

"Q. At your home?—A. Until I insisted upon having him called off.

"Q. Did he stay at your home?—A. Yes, sir.

"By Judge HANEY:

"Q. All the time?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Except when you went out, and then he went with you?—A. He went to St. Louis during that time by himself.

"Q. How far are you from St. Louis, about?—A. About 15 miles.

"Q. You can go there by electric line?—A. Yes, sir; and get back in two or three hours, at any time.

"Q. Then did another officer—I will withdraw that—did the State's attorney of Sangamon County, Springfield, send any officer with you after you had been examined there before the grand jury?—A. No, sir.

"Q. He never had you in custody?—A. No, sir; they don't use those methods.

"Q. When the officer left Springfield—the officer from the State's attorney's office in Cook County left with you to go to your home from Springfield—did he have any warrant against you?—A. No, sir.

"Senator GAMBLE. Was there any warrant for your arrest?—A. No, sir.

"Senator GAMBLE. Or a subpoena served on you?—A. A subpoena to appear at Springfield.

"By Judge HANEY:

"Q. After you left Springfield and went back home was there any subpoena or warrant against you?—A. No, sir.

"Q. What was that officer's name?—A. That was O'Keefe that called for me.

"Senator JOHNSTON. What did the officer say he accompanied you from Springfield for?—A. He claimed it was for my own protection. I told him positively that I needed no protection; that I could protect myself.

"Q. Did he insist upon staying at your house?—A. He was under orders from a gentleman in Chicago.

"Q. Who was the next officer who had charge of you?—A. Well, I think after that time I was under the direction of O'Keefe until I read what is called the 'riot act' to Wayman.

"Q. When was that?—A. That was about a week before the first Browne trial, when I told Wayman no more detectives for me. 'If you have got a warrant, arrest me; if I am guilty of anything, arrest me; but no more detectives; I shall not submit to detectives any longer.' That was my conversation.

"Q. Did O'Keefe then go to Chicago with you and stay with you at the different hotels or wherever you were kept?—A. He did until a week before the Browne trial; then no more detectives after that for me.

"Q. He did stay here until that time?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. The first trial of Browne commenced about the 7th to the 10th of June; that is right, isn't it?—A. Yes, sir; I think so.

"Q. Now, after you were before this grand jury, the first grand jury, and told Mr. Wayman, the State's attorney, and the grand jury that you never got any money from anybody, Browne or anybody else, for voting for LORIMER for United States Senator, were you indicted?—A. I was indicted for perjury either the second or third day I was here—I am not positive which—after my denial.

"Q. Was it the second or third day after you first went before the grand jury?—A. It was either the second or third day; I guess the second. I am not positive whether the second or third day.

"Q. You were indicted for perjury?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. By the same grand jury you had been before?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. After you were indicted for perjury were you taken by the State's attorney or any of the assistants and talked with about your testimony and about your indictment?—A. I guess I was.

"Q. Now, what was the first thing that was done after you were indicted for perjury by him?—A. They kept flaunting the indictment for perjury against me.

"Q. Doing what?—A. Putting it in front of my face, showing it to me, and speaking to me.

"Senator GAMBLE. Who did that?—A. The assistant State's attorney and the State's attorney himself.

"Q. Tell the names of the assistant State's attorneys.—A. Mr. Marshall.

"Q. Did State's Attorney Wayman do that, too?—A. He didn't throw it in my face; he would show it to me and talk to me about losing my home, putting my home on one side and the penitentiary on the other.

"Q. State to this honorable committee what State's Attorney Wayman told you about the indictment for perjury?—A. He told me if I would go before the grand jury and state that I had received some money from Browne and Robert E. Wilson that I would be cleared and go home a free man. That is what he told me.

"Senator BURROWS. Anything else said?—A. Well, I told him that I had told him all I knew, and he denied that I had. We kept up the conversation, and he said he was a farmer himself in his early days South. I told him I was a farmer, and he told me, he says: 'You come up here'—the conversation drifted along this line—and let these Chicago lawyers get a hold of you and they will take your farm away from you.' That was the line of talk; and he told me to rest over that night—that was Friday evening—and to come in by 10 o'clock on Saturday morning and make a confession, and he would have the perjury charge expunged from the record, and I would go home a free man. That was the sum and substance of the conversation.

"Q. They had more than an hour to talk to you about that?—A. Yes, sir; something of that kind.

"Q. What time of day was that conversation; what time did it end?—A. It was somewhere between 5.20 and 6.30; it was 6.30 when I left the Criminal Court Building that evening.

"Q. Then were you put in the custody of an officer when you left the State's attorney?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Who was that officer?—A. That was Mr. O'Keefe.

"Q. What did he do with you?—A. He took me back to the Morrison Hotel.

"Q. Did he stay there with you?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. All the time?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Was it he that took his revolver billie out and put it on the table in your presence?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did he talk with you about what the State's attorney talked to you about—about your going back and telling what the State's attorney wanted you to tell?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. What did Detective O'Keefe from the State's attorney's office say to you in that respect?—A. He said: 'Link, I would not stand by the other fellows, I would stand by Wayman, he is the man to stand by in this matter; make a confession. I don't like to see you get into trouble and you are going to get into trouble.'

"Q. Mr. Link, how long during this conversation between you and O'Keefe, how long did O'Keefe talk to you?—A. Off and on, but I disremember the number of times; it was not continuous, of course, but off and on during the time he was with me.

"Q. Off and on between the times you and the State's attorney had the talk and he took you back there?—A. Prior to that night, too.

"Q. All the time you were in his custody?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Now, did Officer O'Keefe take you back to the State's attorney's office the next morning?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. That would be Saturday morning?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did you talk with, or did Thomas Maguire, of the Maguire & White Detective Agency, talk with you?—A. Yes, sir; he was present nearly every time I met Wayman, and Wayman and myself were in Wayman's room.

"Q. What did Maguire say to you?—A. He tried to put words in my mouth several times.

"Q. Words about what?—A. He said I should not be friendly to the Browne side, and the LORIMER side, and so forth; 'It doesn't look well, Link; that don't look well.' I told him it was none of his business; I would take up for my friends wherever I saw fit to take them.

"Q. Did Thomas Maguire, the detective, say this to you—that you had better tell what you knew or you would go to the penitentiary; did Maguire say that to you?—A. I rather think one of the assistant State's attorneys told me that; I don't know whether Maguire said that to me or not, but his conversation ran on that line. I think that was Arnold; 20 minutes before 5 o'clock that evening of that week.

"Q. What was that conversation you had with Assistant State's Attorney Arnold in which he said that to you?—A. Mr. Arnold came to me and says, 'Link, you have got just 20 minutes to save your life.' I says, 'What do you mean?' He says, 'You have got just 20 minutes to go in and tell all you know to save your life.' I says, 'I have told all I know.' He says, 'All right, Link, it is your funeral; it is not mine.' He goes into the grand-jury room and an indictment was returned that evening. I told him I had told all I knew.

"Senator PAYNTER. An indictment against you?—A. Yes, sir; for perjury.

"Q. Arnold said that you—A. He said I had 20 minutes to save my life.

"Q. That was just before—A. (Interrupting.) Twenty minutes before the grand jury adjourned at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon or evening.

"Q. Were you told that night that you were in the custody of an officer of the State's attorney and that you had been indicted for perjury?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Who told you that? Was it a detective or one of the assistant State's attorneys?—A. It was, I think, Mr. Wayman himself that told me that.

"Q. Mr. Wayman himself told you that?—A. I think so.

"Q. Did Mr. Arnold say to you in that conversation that you have been referring to, just before you were indicted for perjury, that if you didn't tell what they wanted you to that they would send you to the penitentiary?—A. That it was my funeral; yes, sir.

"Q. Did he use the word 'penitentiary'—that he would send you to the penitentiary?—A. I am not quite certain; I am not positive; but he used that kind of terms to me.

"Q. Did he lay special stress upon the word 'penitentiary' in talking to you?—A. Mr. Wayman laid more stress on that than any of his assistants.

"Q. That is, that he would send you to the penitentiary?—A. He pictured it very, very strenuously between the penitentiary and my home.

"Senator BURROWS. Will you state what he said?—A. He said, 'It will be much better for you to be here with your family than to go to the penitentiary and lose your home.' He pictured what the penitentiary was, and so forth.

"Senator BURROWS. What did he say?—A. That I might lose my home, and he put a great deal of stress on the penitentiary and my home—I being a farmer away from my home and my family.

"Q. Did Mr. Wayman say anything in picturing the penitentiary on one side and your home on the other about your wife?—A. Why, certainly.

"Q. Tell the committee what he said.—A. Well, that I would lose my home, and that meant I would lose my wife, too.

"Q. Did he say what would be done if you would go before the grand jury and tell what he wanted you to?—A. That I could go home a free man and not a perjurer in any manner, shape, or form.

"Senator BURROWS. If what?—A. If I went before the grand jury and made an acknowledgment.

"Senator BURROWS. An acknowledgment of what?—A. If I had received $1,000 from Browne.

"Senator FRAZIER. Was that true that you had received $1,000?—A. I shall not deny it; it is true.

"Q. Did not the State's attorney say to you that if you would go on and say that you had received $1,000 from Browne for voting for WILLIAM LORIMER for United States Senator that you could go home?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. That was not true?—A. That was not true; no, sir.

"Q. Did Mr. Wayman tell you that you had been indicted and that he would take you before the criminal court for trial on that indictment if you didn't go before the grand jury and tell that body what Mr. Wayman wanted you to tell?—A. Why, certainly; he said I would have to give a bond, and it was a $15,000 bond, and they made it $5,000, I think.

"Q. Did Mr. Wayman tell you what he would do if you would go before the grand jury and tell them what he wanted you to tell them? Did he tell you what he would do with the indictment?—A. Nolle pros it and have it expunged from the record, so in future years it would not be on the record.

"Q. Did you say to Mr. Wayman, 'Well, I will go before the grand jury and lie if I have to; but I don't want to;' did you say that or that in substance?—A. That in substance.

"Q. What did you tell the grand jury, then?—A. I told the grand jury that I had received $1,000 from Browne and that I had received $900 through Robert Wilson; that is what I told the grand jury.

"Q. Did you tell the grand jury that you had received that money or any part of it for voting for Senator LORIMER for United States Senator?—A. Positively no.

"Q. Just before you went before the grand jury that last time, did Mr. Wayman tell you that if you would go and tell the grand jury what he wanted you to, you would keep out of trouble and keep from disgracing your family?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. After you went before the grand jury with Mr. Wayman the last time and told the grand jury what Mr. Wayman asked you to, what, if anything, did Mr. Wayman or his office do in relation to the indictment against you for perjury?—A. Well, he took me before Judge McSurely, I think it was, and said: 'Mr. Link has made a clean breast of the whole affair.' I didn't know what he called a 'clean breast,' but those were his words. I denied making a clean breast of anything except the truth.

"Q. Did Mr. Wayman have the indictment against you quashed?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. He took you before Judge McSurely and asked to have it done, and Judge McSurely did it?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did you still continue in the custody of the officer?—A. No, sir; he allowed me to go home.

"Q. Did he put you in the custody of an officer after that time?—A. Certainly.

"Q. When?—A. The following week.

"Q. That was Saturday that he dismissed the indictment against you?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. When, the next week, were you put in the custody of another officer?—A. Monday night or Tuesday night—I think it was Monday night—of the following week. A subpoena was served on me to go to Springfield, and immediately on my return home on that Saturday evening—I returned home about 6.30; that is, my home town; I didn't get home quite that early.

"Q. Did that officer or some other officer from the State's attorney's office keep you in custody all the time—until about the time of the first Browne trial?—A. I wrote a letter to Mr. Wayman that I would not submit to it, and told him personally when I came to Chicago no more detectives for me; that I would not play hide and go seek any longer; that I was not a criminal, and that I would not stand for it. I wrote him such a letter from my home, and told him to recall Mr. O'Keefe, which he did.

"Q. When was that?—A. After he was with me; I think about four days there.

"Q. Do you remember what day of the month that was, or what month?—A. No, sir; it was during the month of May.

"Q. When was it with respect to the commencement of the first Browne trial?—A. It was some little time before the commencement of the trial.

"Q. About how long?—A. About three or four weeks; perhaps three weeks or something; I don't know. I told him positively that I would not submit to it, and when I saw Mr. Wayman, a week before the first Browne trial, I told him that personally.

"Q. What I want to know is, if you were put into the custody of an officer from the State's attorney's office after you were indicted for perjury and that indictment for perjury had been dismissed?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. You were still kept in the custody of an officer?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Was there any charge against you of any kind that you know of?—A. None whatever.

"Q. After that indictment for perjury had been dismissed?—A. Well, by Mr. Wayman's advice I refused to answer questions at Springfield. I had to go to Springfield two or three times, and at his advice refused to answer the questions.

"Q. Were you summoned before the grand jury in Springfield as a witness?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did Mr. Wayman know that you had been summoned as a witness there?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did he talk with you about whether you should go before the grand jury in response to the subpoena of the court?—A. Not as to whether I should go, but as to whether I should answer certain questions or not.

"Q. Did he tell you whether or not you should answer questions that might be asked you?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. By the grand jury or the State's attorney of Sangamon County?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. What did he tell you?—A. He told me not to answer, but to stand on the ground that I might incriminate myself by answering any questions before the grand jury.

"Q. Did you tell Mr. Wayman that you were not afraid of incriminating yourself?—A. Certainly; I told him I wanted to answer the questions my way that were put to me there.

"Q. What did he say to you?—A. 'Don't do it, Link; don't do it.'

"Q. Did he know that the State's attorney and the grand jury of Sangamon County had summoned you before the grand jury to testify in relation to these matters?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. What did he tell you as to the subject matter? Did he tell you not to answer the questions of the State's attorney or the grand jury of Sangamon County?—A. If the senatorial committee please, the question all hinged upon one answer, 'No' or 'Yes,' to one certain question, and that question was, 'Did you receive or were you offered or do you know of anybody being offered any money in Springfield for voting on any question?' That was the question, and when I finally got permission from Mr. Wayman, which I answered positively, right straight out, 'No.' I answered 'No.' That is all there was about that. He wouldn't let me answer the question at all.

"Q. Did you have a conversation in the criminal court building about a week prior to the trial of Lee O'Neill Browne with H. J. C. Beckemeyer, in the criminal court building about a week before the first Browne trial began?—A. Yes, sir; it was just about a week before—a week prior.

"Q. Did Beckemeyer say to you, 'Our testimony will be alike, word for word?' And did you say, 'No, Beck, I have got the best of you; I promised to vote for LORIMER 8 or 10 days before Browne spoke to me about it?'—A. That conversation took place.

"Q. As I read it?—A. Yes, sir.

"Q. Did Beckemeyer say to you, 'Yes; you have the best of me in that?' Then, did you say to Beckemeyer, 'Beck, I don't believe that LORIMER ever put up a dollar for his election, or that anybody else ever put up a dollar for him?' And did Beckemeyer say, 'I don't believe he did, either?'—A. That was the conversation, word for word, as near as I can remember it.

"Q. Did you ever receive any money or any other thing of value from anybody—Browne, Wilson, or anybody else—on condition, or on the promise or agreement or understanding, directly or indirectly, that you were to vote for WILLIAM LORIMER for United States Senator?—A. I certainly did not.

"Senator GAMBLE. Or after he had voted for LORIMER?

"Q. Did you ever receive any money from Lee O'Neill Browne, Bob Wilson, or R. E. Wilson, whatever his name is, or anybody else, or from any source whatever, or did you receive any other thing of value at any time from anybody because you had voted for WILLIAM LORIMER for United States Senator?—A. No, sir.

"Q. Was there ever any consideration moving to you, or to anybody for you, or for your benefit, in any place, from any source whatever, with the understanding that you were to vote for WILLIAM LORIMER for United States Senator, or if you had voted for WILLIAM LORIMER for United States Senator, any consideration of any kind?—A. None whatever.

"Q. Did you vote for WILLIAM LORIMER for United States Senator for any other reason than that you liked him, and that you favored and that your people favored the things he favored in relation to the deep waterway from the Lakes to the Gulf?—A. That is why I voted for him."

H. J. BECKEMEYER.

This witness also testified before the subcommittee that he had received money from Lee O'Neill Browne as a reward for his vote for Senator LORIMER, but he also testifies that no money or other compensation was promised him before he voted for Mr. LORIMER. His experience before the grand jury was similar to that of the witness Michael Link, and as against his declaration last made before the grand jury and repeated to the subcommittee we have his statement to Michael Link denying the use of money in the senatorial election, and also to Robert E. Wilson that he did not get any money for voting for Mr. LORIMER, and if anyone said so he was a liar.

D. W. HOLSTLAW.

This witness testified that in a conversation with Senator Broderick he told Broderick that he intended to vote for Mr. LORIMER for Senator, to which Broderick replied, "Well, there is $2,500 for you," and that some time afterwards Broderick paid him $2,500. This witness was also driven to making this statement by certain proceedings taken before a grand jury of Sangamon County, Ill., and in many respects the story told by this witness seemed to the subcommittee to be a highly improbable one.

The circumstances before referred to and many others which might be instanced tended to render the testimony of each and all the witnesses who have been named of doubtful value. And in each case in which it was claimed that some member of the Illinois General Assembly had been bribed to vote for Mr. LORIMER the accusation was positively denied by the person accused of committing the alleged act of bribery. And after a careful examination and consideration of all the evidence submitted the committee are of the opinion that even if it should be conceded that the four members of the Illinois General Assembly before referred to received money in consideration for their votes for Mr. LORIMER, there are no facts or circumstances from which it could be found or legally inferred that any other member or members of the said general assembly were bribed to vote for Mr. LORIMER.

The majority for Senator LORIMER in the joint assembly of the two houses of the general assembly of the State of Illinois was 14. Unless, therefore, a sufficient number of these votes were obtained by corrupt means to deprive him of this majority, Mr. LORIMER has a good title to the seat he occupies in the Senate. If it were admitted that four of the members of the general assembly who voted for Mr. LORIMER were bribed to do so, he still had a majority of the votes cast in the general assembly and his election was valid.

CASE OF BROWNE, BRODERICK, AND WILSON.

It is, however, declared that if the four witnesses before named were bribed to vote for Mr. LORIMER, those who bribed them were equally guilty and that the votes of Browne, Broderick, and Wilson should also be excluded. But the committee can find no warrant in the testimony for believing that either one of said legislators was moved by any corrupt influence. Browne's reasons for voting as he did are clearly set forth in his testimony. He was the leader of a faction of the minority of the house, and for certain political reasons he thought it good policy to aid in the election of some member of the majority party other than those who had received a considerable number of votes in the general assembly.

The suggestion that his vote and the votes of others whom he might be able to influence should be given to Mr. LORIMER was first made to him by the speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives, and there is no suggestion in the testimony that Mr. Shurtleff, in thus attempting to bring about Mr. LORIMER's election, was actuated by any improper motive. And the fact that many members of the minority party in the Illinois General Assembly voted for Mr. LORIMER creates no well-grounded suspicion that they were bribed to do so. It is not the first instance in the history of this country in which the members of the minority party of the legislature of a State have joined a few of the members of the party in the majority in electing a Senator from the ranks of the majority party. As to Senator Broderick, there is no testimony that he was bribed to vote for Mr. LORIMER. He not only emphatically denies that he received any money for his vote, but gives his reasons for voting as he did.

Nor is there any evidence in the record from which a legal inference could be drawn that Representative Wilson was bribed to vote for Senator LORIMER. As is hereinafter stated, if Wilson was guilty of any act of bribery, it was not in connection with the senatorial election. There is, therefore, no good ground for deducting his vote from those received by Mr. LORIMER.

Much of the testimony taken upon the investigation related to the alleged payment of money to members of the general assembly of Illinois by one Robert E. Wilson. This was denied by Wilson and by others, and after considering all the evidence on that subject, the committee are not prepared to find that the fact is established. But whether the sums of money claimed to have been paid were or were not paid, that fact has no relevancy to the matter which the committee was appointed to investigate. If any money was disbursed by Wilson, it is evident that it was from a fund which was neither raised nor expended to promote the election of Mr. LORIMER as a Senator nor to reward those who voted for him for that office. It was therefore no part of the duty of the subcommittee to inquire into either the origin of the fund or the purpose for which it was used. That matter was and is one for the proper officials of the State of Illinois to take cognizance of and one with which the Senate of the United States has no concern.

The committee submit to the Senate the testimony taken in the investigation, with their report that, in their opinion, the title of Mr. LORIMER to a seat in the Senate has not been shown to be invalid by the use or employment of corrupt methods or practices, and request that they be discharged from further consideration of Senate resolution No. 264.

The undersigned, while fully concurring in the foregoing report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, desires to state herewith his personal reasons therefor:

There was a vacancy in the Senate from Illinois to be filled by the legislature in the constitutional manner.

The record of the legislature of Illinois consisted of 202 votes on joint ballot, and at a lawful time, May 26, 1909, the vote for Senator was taken, which resulted in 108 votes being cast for Mr. LORIMER, which result was duly certified to the Senate and Mr. LORIMER was seated.

No other person has claimed the right to hold the office or to have been elected thereto.

No claim has been made by or on behalf of the State of Illinois that the election of Mr. LORIMER was not in accordance with law or that any other person is entitled to the office.

On June 7, 1910, more than one year after Mr. LORIMER had been elected and taken his oath of office as a Senator, one Clifford W. Barnes, claiming to act on behalf of "The Legislative Voters' League of Illinois," presented charges in the Senate, alleging on information and belief that three members of the legislature who voted for Mr. LORIMER had been bribed to do so by one Lee O'Neill Browne, who was a Democrat, and who is shown to have been indicted for such act and acquitted by a jury of the State of Illinois upon the trial under such indictment.

When the committee was organized at Chicago to hear the parties who had made the charges, Clifford W. Barnes was called and appeared before the committee. Upon being inquired of as to whether he was prepared to proceed to sustain the charges which he had made he informed the committee he was not prepared to offer anything in support of such charges and did not desire to appear for that purpose, or any other, before the committee. He, however, requested that the Chicago Tribune, a newspaper published in Chicago, should be permitted, through its representative, to introduce testimony before the committee respecting the charges and to appear by counsel.

The committee granted this request and a large amount of testimony was introduced, much of which was outside the legitimate scope of the inquiry and some of which consisted of the testimony of members of the legislature establishing the unreliability, and even infamy, of such witnesses. Men swore without any apparent embarrassment that they had sworn falsely on other occasions; had committed perjury; had violated the laws of their State, the laws of morality, and the laws of decency. While it is true the truth may be told by bad men and should not be disregarded altogether because of the moral character of the party testifying, yet in this case the moral obliquity of some of the witnesses called to establish the charges was such as to make it highly improper to accept such testimony as the basis upon which any man's character or right to an office should depend.

It is not claimed nor was any attempt made to show that Mr. LORIMER was in any way connected with the alleged bribery or that he knew of any bribery or corrupt practice in connection with his election.

The committee is not charged with the investigation of the personal character of the members of the Illinois Legislature, nor should it report upon the same.

The right to investigate the character of the legislative body of a State or any member thereof belongs exclusively to the State and the people thereof.

In the Senate every presumption is in favor of the integrity of the State as certified to it by the chief executive of the State, and no presumption can be indulged that the State acted corruptly in the election of a Senator.

When a question as to the right of an incumbent to sit arises in the Senate which is based upon charges made by persons acting in their individual capacity, the burden of sustaining such charges rests on the charging party, and such party should be held to strict proof of the charges made, and such charges may not be made the basis of a dragnet investigation into the personal conduct or morals of the members of the legislature who participated in the election. The State must stand responsible for the character of its officers; and that responsibility is to its own people and not to any branch of the General Government.

The Senate may inquire into the personal fitness of a man elected by a State to sit as a Senator and may determine such question within the exercise of its exclusive powers, but in doing so it may not inquire into the personal character of the officers through whom the State acts. That question belongs to the people of the State exclusively.

The Senate may, however, inquire into the manner of the election of a Member of its body to the extent, and for the purpose of ascertaining whether such election was an honest one, representing the will of the members of the legislative body which certifies his election to the Senate, and in doing this we may inquire whether the votes cast by members of the legislature were procured by bribery of such members, by the person for whom they voted or by anyone on behalf of such person with the knowledge or consent of such person, and in case we should find that such bribery existed we should find that his election was procured in violation of the law, and the person so selected should not be permitted to hold the office of Senator.

In this case Mr. LORIMER is neither charged nor shown to have bribed or corrupted any member of the legislature who voted for him, or to have furnished any money to any person for such purpose, neither has it been shown that he had any knowledge of any bribery or corrupt practice in connection with his election. We do not have to weigh testimony to arrive at this conclusion, for there was no attempt to establish such conduct or knowledge on the part of Senator LORIMER.

That a sufficient number of Democrats had agreed among themselves to join those Republicans who forced Mr. LORIMER's election is clearly shown by the testimony, a majority of the faction of the Democratic Party from which such votes came was acting under the leadership of Mr. Lee O'Neill Browne, who was a member of the house.

Much testimony and much scandal has been brought to the attention of the committee in connection with Mr. Browne's method of dealing with the Democrats who voted for Mr. LORIMER under his leadership. Men have been charged with corrupt practice, bribery, and perjury. The powers of the courts of Illinois have been invoked to punish the men charged with these offenses, and trials have been had, but no one has been convicted. Another election for the election of members of the Illinois Legislature has been held and most of the men charged with crime and corruption have been reelected to office by the people of Illinois. Can it be urged that the Senate, in determining the truth of the charges affecting the election of Mr. LORIMER, should disregard the verdict of the courts and of the people before whom the charges were urged and considered and unseat a Member upon testimony held insufficient by the people of the State of Illinois?

W. B. HEYBURN.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I was wondering whether it might not be wise to have the conclusion of the report read to the Senate. It can be read or not, just as the Senator sees fit.

Mr. BURROWS. It will be printed in the RECORD.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, we are unable to hear the Senator from Michigan.

Mr. BURROWS. The report is to be printed in full in the RECORD. There is no objection to that.

I desire to state in this connection that the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRAZIER], a member of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, and also a member of the subcommittee which made the investigation, wires me that—

I desire you state in your report or to Senate that I do not concur, and that I reserve right to file minority report later if I desire to do so.

J. B. FRAZIER.

I make that request on behalf of my colleague, the Senator from Tennessee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the request of the Senator from Tennessee will be granted.

Mr. BURROWS. In this connection, Mr. President, I submit the testimony taken by the committee, and also the following resolution for the printing of 1,000 copies for the use of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution (S. Res. 311), as follows:

Resolved, That there be printed as a document 1,000 copies of the report of the committee and the proceedings before the Committee on Privileges and Elections and a subcommittee thereof in the matter of the investigation of certain charges against WILLIAM LORIMER, a Senator from the State of Illinois.

Mr. BURROWS. The resolution should be referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I should like to inquire from the Senator from Michigan if there are enough copies of the testimony in this case already printed so that each Member of the Senate can be furnished with a copy?

Mr. BURROWS. The object of the resolution is to supply that defect.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I did not understand from the reading of the resolution that it provided for printing anything more than 1,000 copies of the report of the committee.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Oh, no.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. It provides for printing the evidence as well?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It provides for printing 1,000 copies of the report and testimony for the use of the Senate.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE. I did not understand it.

Mr. CULBERSON. I will ask the Senator from Michigan if any minority report was made from the subcommittee to the full committee.

Mr. BURROWS. The Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRAZIER] said that he could not concur with the committee in its findings in the subcommittee and also in the full committee, and I have therefore proffered his request that he be allowed time to file a minority report if he should desire to do so.

Mr. CULBERSON. What I desire to have an answer to is whether any member of the subcommittee filed with the full committee a report or protest.

Mr. BURROWS. The Senator means to the subcommittee?

Mr. CULBERSON. I ask if any member of the subcommittee filed a minority report to the full committee.

Mr. BURROWS. The Senator from Tennessee filed a letter, or read a letter, to the committee stating that he did not concur in the report.

Mr. CULBERSON. Is that letter a part of the report to-day?

Mr. BURROWS. It is not. The Senator from Tennessee was wired and asked if he desired to have his letter which was presented to the committee printed with the report, to which he replied—I hold his telegram of yesterday in my hand—

No; you need not file letter and statement of conclusions with your report, but would ask that you state in your report, or to Senate, that I do not concur and that I reserve right to file minority report later if I desire to do so.

That statement I have made, and the request has been granted.

Mr. CULBERSON. That answers my inquiry.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Has the resolution been adopted?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It has not been adopted.

Mr. BURROWS. It should be referred to the Committee on Printing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the resolution will be referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Mr. President, as a member of the Committee on Privileges and Elections it is with regret that I am compelled to say that at present I am not able either to concur or dissent from the majority report of the committee. It is due to the Senate that the reasons for that be stated, and I will take only perhaps a minute in doing so. In doing so I shall confine myself to those things which should be, and I take it for granted are, of record, with no criticism whatever of the committee or of any of my colleagues on the committee.

I am a member of the committee, but I was not a member of the subcommittee. It was the subcommittee, of course, that took the testimony in this case.

On last Friday night I received a notice that the full committee would meet on Saturday at 10 o'clock. The committee did meet on that date, and a report of the subcommittee to the full committee was presented, together with the statement of the Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRAZIER], to which the chairman of the committee has just alluded, which I am sorry is not presented with the report and other matters just laid before the Senate. But, I take it, this could not be done under the telegram the chairman has read.

Mr. President, when the committee met at 10 o'clock last Saturday the testimony was laid before all the members of the committee. That was on Saturday morning. Speaking for myself, it was the first time I had seen the testimony. I understood also that there were briefs, more or less voluminous, neither of which I had seen.

After the report of the subcommittee was read and other statements, including that of Senator FRAZIER, were submitted, a motion was made that the report of the subcommittee should be adopted by the full committee. I was not able to assent to that proposition at that time for the reason that I had not read the testimony and had had no opportunity of doing so.

For that reason I asked that the matter might go over until after the holidays so that this testimony might be examined. The committee would not agree to that.

Then I asked for a week in which to examine the testimony and briefs. The committee, in its wisdom, of which I make no criticism whatever, would not agree to that. Finally, upon the withdrawal of the motion to adopt the report then presented by the subcommittee on last Saturday, the full committee adjourned on motion to meet and finally dispose of the matter on yesterday morning, thus giving the members of the committee who had had no opportunity to examine the testimony and the briefs until Tuesday morning to make such examination before making up their minds.

This seemed to me to be too short a time. It amounted to one-half of a working day; that is, Monday forenoon; or, if you include Sunday, one day and a half. The Senate itself can judge of that. Here is the testimony. It is a volume of 748 pages, closely printed. Here are the precedents involved, or some of them—a large volume. Here are the briefs—one of them nearly 200 pages long.

I immediately took the testimony away with me, and finally, on Saturday afternoon, got a copy of the brief in behalf of Senator LORIMER, but I was not able to get the brief which, I understood, had been printed on the other side until Monday morning.

On Sunday I entered into the investigation, so as to inform myself whether I could intelligently, one way or the other, concur or dissent from the report.

On Sunday it was quite impossible to examine with any kind of care even this brief, which is over 190 pages in length; it was impossible to examine the testimony in that brief time, so at the committee meeting on yesterday, when the motion was made to adopt the conclusion of the subcommittee and authorize the chairman to draw the report which has just been filed, I was not able to vote in favor of it, but, on the contrary, was impelled to vote against it, because, using all possible diligence, I had not been able, not only not to master, but even carefully to investigate the testimony, the briefs, or the precedents.

For this reason, Mr. President, I am not able either to concur with or dissent from the report of the majority of the committee, and shall not be able to determine whether I shall do so until I have given to these matters—the testimony, the arguments, and the precedents—such investigation and study as satisfies my mind one way or the other—such study as so serious a matter requires.

I thought it necessary to state this to the Senate so that the Senate might know why I can not concur or dissent. I therefore reserve the right, as I did in committee, to take such action as my judgment compels when I have had an opportunity to investigate these matters—which I trust I have shown to the Senate has not existed heretofore so far as I am concerned. I reserve the right, as I did in committee, either to concur or dissent or file a minority report.

Mr. President, I have served on this committee, I think, for about 12 years, and I recognize the gravity and seriousness of a case like this, not only as it affects the Senator whose name is in question, but as it affects a State and the Senate itself. There ought to be no delay on the one hand nor any inconsiderate haste on the other hand. We are about to adjourn. We shall reconvene immediately after the Christmas holidays. That will give to any Senator who desires diligently to examine the matter time to do so and to arrive at his conclusions. That having been done, Mr. President, I think all Senators will agree, without exception, that the case should be expedited and concluded.

I therefore ask unanimous consent that at an appropriate time, quite early after the reconvening of the Senate after the holiday recess—say Monday, January 9—the report of the committee just given to the Senate and laid on the table subject to call, together with any other reports which may be made in the premises, shall be taken up for consideration and made the special order, to be continued from day to day until Saturday the 14th of January, unless sooner disposed of, at which time, before adjournment on that day, the report of the committee and all questions arising thereunder and any other reports that may be filed, together with any resolution that may be offered up to that time, shall be voted on and finally disposed of.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Indiana yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I do.

Mr. GALLINGER. As I understand the matter, this is a privileged question, which can be called up at any time and discussed by the Senate. I am not willing that it shall be put in such attitude that it will displace the unfinished business, which is now the matter before the Senate, but of course the consideration of a question of this kind will not be opposed whenever the chairman of the committee feels that it is his duty to call it up.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Mr. President, I understand that, and, as I tried to state, the reason for the request for unanimous consent was that a definite period might be fixed. I thought we might thus best expedite the matter, which, I take it, everybody desires to have disposed of. I assume that a definite period—if this is too long a time, reduce it—would answer the ends of the reasonable disposition not only of this business but of the other business of the Senate.

Of course it lies on the table, subject to the call not only of the chairman of the committee, but also of any other Senator—the Senator can make it broader than that—but if that should be the case, and it be called up one day, discussed, and then go over for a week, the discussion might go on to the end of the session without arriving at any conclusion. Of course I merely want the sense of the Senate upon it. Whatever the Senate decides will be the law of the case.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Indiana yield to the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I have made my request for unanimous consent, and I yield to the Senator.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. President, I gather from the remarks of the Senator from Indiana that he desires to reserve the right to file minority views if he should conclude so to do.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I reserve the right to either concur, dissent, or file a minority report, or anything else dictated by the study of the testimony, briefs, and precedents.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana asks unanimous consent that he may be allowed to file his views on the report just made. Is there objection?

Mr. BURROWS. There is no objection to that, I understand.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair hears no objection, and the Senator from Indiana has that permission.

Mr. BURROWS. Mr. President, I desire to say further that I think the Senator from Indiana must have misunderstood the resolution passed by the Senate and my request that the report of the committee lie on the table.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. No; I understood that.

Mr. BURROWS. The very object of that was to give to every member of the Senate the opportunity to examine the testimony and the report. In that way we fully meet the criticism of the Senator from Indiana that there has been undue haste in the matter—

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I expressly stated that I made no criticism at all. I merely stated the facts as to why I can not now concur or dissent from the majority report.

Mr. BURROWS. In order to give time to examine the report and the testimony, I have asked that the report lie on the table and the testimony printed in sufficient quantity to supply the Senate. There is no occasion for fixing a date for the consideration of the report.

As has been well said by the Senator from New Hampshire, this is a privileged report and can be called up at any time.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Mr. President, I expressly state that I make no criticism on the committee or any member thereof. I am familiar with the proprieties. I have stated merely the facts. The Senate can see for itself that it was not an excuse, but an explanation as to why I myself am not ready to express any opinion upon this case, either concurring with or dissenting from the majority report. There [exhibiting] is the volume of testimony—748 pages closely printed; here [exhibiting] is one of the briefs—nearly 200 pages long; there [exhibiting] is another; and here [exhibiting] is an abstract. The time given—

Mr. BAILEY. Will the Senator permit me to ask him a question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Indiana yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I do.

Mr. BAILEY. Of course the Senator might have been otherwise engaged, but a very elaborate brief for the petitioners in this case was sent to me, and I assume was sent to every member of the committee, and probably to every Member of the Senate, something like two months ago, or certainly more than a month ago.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. As I have said in my remarks, to interrupt the Senator right there, I never saw nor heard of these briefs until the meeting of the committee on Saturday last. On Saturday afternoon I succeeded in getting the brief of Mr. Haney, but was unable to get the other briefs—I was informed at that time that they were in existence—until Monday morning, when I did get them, and I never saw the testimony until last Saturday morning at committee meeting.

The Senate itself can judge whether or not I am unreasonable in saying that, even working on Sunday, which would allow a day and a half before the final meeting of the committee, there was sufficient time to go through a volume of 748 pages, a brief of one hundred and ninety and some odd pages, and another brief of I do not know how many pages, to say nothing of the precedents.

At least, Mr. President, working with some diligence, I could not do it. I state that not in criticism of anybody else, but as a reason why I am not able to act this morning, and I made the same statement in the committee yesterday morning.

Now, as to the other point of the Senator from Michigan [Mr. Burrows], I am not urging haste. Not being able, for the reasons given, thoroughly to familiarize myself with the case—and, I repeat, the Senate can judge for itself whether a day and a half, including working on Sunday, is enough to go through all of these volumes and all the authorities cited—it seems to me that the holidays would afford enough time. And if the holidays do afford enough time, we should then proceed to consider and conclude the case without unreasonable delay. That is the only request I made.

Mr. BURROWS. May I ask the Senator a question? The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Indiana yield to the Senator from Michigan?

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Yes.

Mr. BURROWS. Does the Senator know of any criticism of him because he did not feel able to concur or dissent at that meeting of the committee?

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Well, no; except the one the Senator implied. He did not mean it, but he implied one when he stated a moment ago that, in the first place, I complained of haste and now I wanted to make haste. I am trying to show that the Senator is in error, and he will see it himself.

I said, as the Senator will remember, when I asked that opportunity to investigate the record of the case be given those of us who were not members of the subcommittee, that the time during the holidays would be sufficient. The committee would not agree to that. Then I asked for only one week. The committee would not agree to that.

I do not desire, on account of my not having gone through 748 pages of testimony and the briefs and precedents in a day and a half, including Sunday, to delay this matter. It struck me—and it is a matter I have thought of since I have been sitting here in my seat—that it would serve the ends of justice, the convenience of Senators, and the settlement of the whole great question involved if, a reasonable time having been given to all Senators to examine the testimony and the arguments, that a specific time then be fixed for taking up and determining the report of the committee, any other reports that may be filed, and any resolutions that may be based upon them.

If the 9th of January is too early to take the matter up I would change the dates in my request for unanimous consent so that it would be taken up on Monday, the 16th, and continue until Saturday, the 21st, unless we can dispose of it earlier than that. That would give one week.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator restate his request for unanimous consent?

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I request unanimous consent—if the dates first mentioned are too early, I will change them—that on Monday, January 16, the report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections in this case and such other reports from any member of the committee as may be filed, together with any resolution that may be offered by any Senator, shall be taken up as a special order, to be continued from day to day until Saturday, January 21, unless sooner disposed of, and that on Saturday, January 21, before adjournment, or on any day prior thereto when the conclusion of the matter can be reached, a final vote be taken upon the report of the majority, such other reports as may be filed, and any resolution that may be offered by any Senator, so that the entire case may be disposed of in that week. I do that merely to get the sense of the Senate upon this matter.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, believing and hoping that this matter will be disposed of before the 16th day of January, I object to the request for unanimous consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is made to the request.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. In view of the Senator's statement a moment ago, I will not follow that with a motion. As the discussion has gone along I thought of making a motion that this be done since unanimous consent can not be had, but that can be done later, immediately after Congress convenes following the holiday recess. I understand the Senator from New Hampshire has charge of the unfinished business. I want to say personally to the Senator that I thought this method would get this matter out of the way of his unfinished business even quicker than the other method. The whole matter, then, can go over, so far as I am concerned, both as to the request for unanimous consent or, failing to get that, a motion, until the Senate reconvenes after the holidays. I thought it wise to make the request now, but if the Senator thinks it will interfere with his unfinished business, why of course he has the right to object.

Mr. GALLINGER. I will merely suggest, Mr. President, so far as the unfinished business is concerned, that I shall endeavor not to allow it to obstruct a matter such as has been discussed this morning. I will try to be courteous—

Mr. BEVERIDGE. I am sure of that.

Mr. GALLINGER (continuing). To all Senators, and especially the Senator from Indiana, I feel sure that there will be abundant opportunity to consider the resolutions that have been submitted and to decide the very important question, which ought to be speedily determined.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. The statement of the Senator from New Hampshire, of course, is satisfactory to me. I understand that he means precisely what he says, and that when this matter comes up he will not permit the unfinished business to stand in the way of a question so important and so privileged.

Mr. SMOOT, subsequently, from the Committee on Printing, to which was referred Senate resolution 311, submitted this day by Mr. BURROWS, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent and agreed to.

RULE REGARDING TARIFF LEGISLATION.

ENTRY ON COAL LANDS IN ALABAMA.

Mr. OVERMAN. Mr. President, on behalf of the Senator from Alabama [Mr. JOHNSTON], who is confined to his room by sickness and is very anxious to get a local bill through at this session, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 9266) extending the operation of the act of June 10, 1910, to coal lands in Alabama.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes that all the public lands containing coal deposits in the State of Alabama which are now being withheld from homestead entry under the provisions of the act entitled "An act to exclude the public lands in Alabama from the operations of the laws relating to mineral lands," approved March 3, 1883, may be entered under the homestead laws of the United States subject to the provisions, terms, conditions, and limitations prescribed in the act entitled "An act to provide for agricultural entries on coal lands," approved June 10, 1910.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

TEXAS-NEW MEXICO BOUNDARY LINE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States (H. Doc.

No. 1076), which was read, ordered to lie on the table, and to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The constitutional convention recently held in the Territory of New Mexico has submitted for acceptance or rejection the draft of a constitution to be voted upon by the voters of the proposed new State, which contains a clause purporting to fix the boundary line between New Mexico and Texas which may reasonably be construed to be different from the boundary lines heretofore legally run, marked, established, and ratified by the United States and the State of Texas, and under which claims might be set up and litigation instigated of an unnecessary and improper character. A joint resolution has been introduced in the House of Representatives for the purpose of authorizing the President of the United States and the State of Texas to mark the boundary lines between the State of Texas and the Territory or proposed State of New Mexico, or to reestablish and re-mark the boundary line heretofore established and marked, and to enact that any provision of the proposed constitution of New Mexico that in any way tends to annul or change the boundary lines between Texas and New Mexico shall be of no force or effect. I recommend the adoption of such joint resolution.

The act of June 5, 1858 (vol. 11, U. S. Stats., 310)— authorizing the President of the United States, in conjunction with the State of Texas, to run and mark the boundary lines between the territories of the United States and the State of Texas—under which a survey was made in 1859-60 by one John H. Clark, and in the act of Congress approved March 3, 1891 (vol. 26, U. S. Stats., 971)—

the boundary lines between said public-land strip and Texas, and between Texas and New Mexico, established under the act of June 5, 1858, is hereby confirmed—and a joint resolution was passed by the legislature of Texas, and became a law March 25, 1891—

confirming the location of the boundary lines established by the United States commissioner between No Man's Land and Texas and Texas and New Mexico under the act of Congress of June 5, 1858. (Laws of Texas, 191, p. 193, Resolutions.)

The Committee on Indian Affairs, in its report of May 2, 1910 (No. 1250), Sixty-first Congress, second session, recommended a joint resolution, in the fourth section of which appears the following:

Provided, That the part of a line run and marked by monument along the thirty-second parallel of north latitude, and that part of the line run and marked along the one hundred and third degree of longitude west of Greenwich, the same being the east and west and north and south lines between Texas and New Mexico, and run by authority of act of Congress approved June 5, 1858, and known as the Clark lines, and that part of the line along the parallel of 36 degrees and 30 minutes of north latitude, forming the north boundary line known as the Panhandle of Texas, and which said parts of said lines have been confirmed by act of Congress of March 3, 1891, shall remain the true boundary lines of Texas and Oklahoma and the Territory of New Mexico: Provided further, That it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed under this act to re-mark said old Clark monuments and lines where they can be found and identified.

The lines referred to in the paragraph above are the same as contained in the proposed joint resolution above referred to.

Under the act of Congress approved June 20, 1910, "An act to enable the people of New Mexico to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union," etc. (vol. 36, U. S. Stats., 557, sec. 4), provides that when a constitution has been duly ratified by the people of New Mexico a certified copy of the same shall be submitted to the President of the United States, and in section 5 it provides that after certain elections shall have been held and the result certified to the President of the United States, the President shall immediately issue his proclamation, upon which the proposed State of New Mexico shall be deemed admitted by Congress into the Union, by virtue of said act of June 20, 1910. The required acts have not taken place, and therefore to all intents and purposes the proposed State of New Mexico is still a Territory and under the control of Congress.

As the boundary line between Texas and New Mexico is established under the act of June 5, 1858, and confirmed by Congress under the act of March 3, 1891, and ratified by the State of Texas March 25, 1891, and as the Territory of New Mexico has not up to the present time fulfilled all the requirements under the act of June 20, 1910, for admission to the Union, there is no reason why the joint resolution should not be adopted, as above provided, and I recommend the adoption of such resolution for the purpose of conferring indisputable authority upon the President, in conjunction with the State of Texas, to reestablish and re-mark a boundary already established and confirmed by Congress and the State of Texas.

WM. H. TAFT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, December 21, 1910.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, the joint resolution referred to in the message of the President was also introduced in the Senate, and a favorable report from the committee has been made, and the joint resolution is now on the calendar.

I ask unanimous consent, under the circumstances, for the present consideration of the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 124) reaffirming the boundary line between Texas and the Territory of New Mexico.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a joint resolution, which will be read by the Secretary, subject to objection.

The Secretary read the joint resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the joint resolution?

Mr. HEYBURN. I should like to have further information. This land, now a part of the Territory of New Mexico, contributes to the school funds of the United States to the extent of four sections in each township; that is, to double the extent of the States in general. The land now belongs to the United States and is subject to that arrangement. If it goes to Texas—for Texas owns its own lands—the school funds of the United States would be depleted to the extent of the value of the school sections falling within this strip. I understand it is a strip about 300 miles long and of very considerable area. A great many school sections would fall within that area.

Texas has no law under which these reservations exist or under the operation of which the Government would receive any contribution to the public school funds or the educational purposes of the Government.

I think a question involving a matter of this magnitude and of that peculiar character ought not to be hastily considered. I am not as fully advised as I hope to be. I have gone through the papers carefully. The question was discussed at length in Congress some years ago, and I have before me the remarks of Members of the House and Senate, some of whom are now Members, and I hope the Senator from Texas will not press his request for the present consideration of the joint resolution.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I hope the Senator from Idaho will not object to the passage of the joint resolution. It seems to me that this is not a question of our handing over Government land which may be divided into school sections. This is land that belongs to Texas, as I understand it. It is now occupied by citizens of Texas. It was marked by monuments under laws of the United States as between the United States and Texas. There is now an attempt in the new constitution of New Mexico to throw the whole strip on which Texas citizens are living into the new State of New Mexico, leading, as the President says, to litigation and very likely to more serious trouble. It seems to me that we ought not to permit such a thing as that to be done. I have only heard of it as I have heard the President's message this morning and listened to the bill. It appears to me it is a serious matter to attempt to take land which has belonged to a State with the entire concurrence of the Government of the United States.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, will the Senator from Idaho yield to me?

Mr. HEYBURN. I yield to the Senator.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President, the boundary line between New Mexico and Texas was fixed by an act passed in 1850 by Congress and acquiesced in by the State of Texas. The line as actually run on the ground by the commissioner of the United States was established in 1859-60 by the commissioner appointed under the act of 1858. Although the executive departments of the United States and the State of Texas had recognized, between 1858 and 1891, the existence of this line and the correctness of it, Congress in 1891 passed an act expressly confirming the establishment of the boundary line made in 1858. Texas did the same by a joint resolution passed in 1891.

So, as suggested by the Senator from Massachusetts, this land, by an agreement between the United States and Texas, has belonged to Texas since 1858. It has been actually marked on the ground as Texas territory. Much of the land there has been patented by the State, and it is now occupied by citizens of Texas; it has been held and occupied continuously since 1858; and recently villages and towns have been erected on the strip of land which is in dispute.

The purpose of the joint resolution, the passage of which has been recommended by the President in the message just read, is merely to reaffirm and fix again on the ground, as some of the monuments may have been obliterated, the actual line that was run in 1859-60 under the act of 1858 and confirmed by Congress and Texas in 1891 by legislative enactment and acquiesced in since 1858 by the executive departments of both Governments.

The land does not belong to New Mexico, and it is not the purpose of the joint resolution to take it from New Mexico. The land belongs to Texas, and the object of the joint resolution is to confirm it so far as the joint resolution may do.

So far as the question of education is concerned, I will say that Texas in 1845 reserved the public domain of that State when it was admitted into the Union, and every other section of land which is patented by Texas goes to the public free-school fund of that State. The proportion of this land goes to the public-school fund of Texas, as in the case of all other lands patented by the State. It is true it does not go to the free-school fund so far as the United States is concerned, but it is dedicated to the general purposes of education, as is the case with United States land.

I trust that the Senator will allow the joint resolution to be considered and passed.

Mr. HEYBURN. I yielded to the Senator, and I desire to resume for a moment the remarks I was engaged in making.

I have before me a document which conveys some information. The one hundred and third meridian has been officially fixed as a boundary line between Texas and New Mexico. We acquired Texas by a direct treaty with Texas, regarding it as an independent government.

Mr. GALLINGER. With Mexico?

Mr. HEYBURN. I have never considered that it came from Mexico, because I have always recognized the independence of Texas as having been complete when we made it a State. There was an interval, I think history sustains me in saying, when Texas was an independent nation. Political parties have divided on that question. However that may be, it is not very important to determine it now. But the fact is that the one hundred and third meridian, wherever that be, whether it may include this land or not, is the legally, lawfully established line. Whether men going upon the ground have correctly located this line or not is a mere physical fact that may be determined.

When the controversy was up the Government of the United States paid Texas $10,000,000 for all claims that she might have then or thereafter to anything west of the one hundred and third meridian. If I am correct in those things, then this question is of more importance than might seem upon the face, and however it may be disposed of, it ought not to be disposed of so summarily that—

Mr. BAILEY. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. HEYBURN. I do.

Mr. BAILEY. If the Senator will permit me, even if it be true, and indeed it is true, that that astronomical line was declared by the original law to be the boundary between New Mexico and Texas, when the parties to that contract went on the ground, ran the line, and established the monuments, then that line as thus physically run on the ground would control against the mere astronomical or geographical designation, just the same as if the Senator from Idaho and myself owned adjoining land and the deeds called for a certain line, and if he and I went on the ground and ran the dividing line between the two estates that dividing line as thus established on the ground would bind both him and me.

But I will call the Senator's attention to another matter. In what is known as the Greer County case, which was tried while my colleague was attorney general of the State, I believe, the Supreme Court of the United States itself held that Texas was bound by what is known as the Clark line, and they took a very considerable strip of our territory under that. I believe I am right in that.

Mr. CULBERSON. The whole county of Greer.

Mr. BAILEY. Upon the very proposition that we were bound by the Clark line. Now, it would be a singular thing to say that we are bound by it in order to take our territory away from us on one side and the United States is not bound by it in order to take our territory away from us on the other side. That would be cutting us both ways.

If the Senator from Idaho will recall the decision in the Greer County case, I am sure, then, he will not have any doubt in his mind that the line, as thus run and established on the ground, is the line that must prevail even over the astronomical description.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, the record of Congress shows that the line which was run upon the ground and established was not approved or adopted.

Mr. BAILEY. The Senator is mistaken about that.

Mr. HEYBURN. I have the reference here.

Mr. BAILEY. What document has the Senator?

Mr. HEYBURN. If the Senator will refer to Document No. 635, Fifty-seventh Congress, first session, I think he will find that the Clark survey was not approved. It was claimed that it was 3 miles out of line. The court has recognized the meridian as the line. The question was not involved in that case, as I remember it, but my memory is very scant indeed. It was not determined by the court that the Clark line was the line. The meridian has always been the line, and Texas itself has claimed that the one hundred and third meridian was the line. The only question is, Where is the one hundred and third meridian?

Mr. BAILEY. The Senator, of course, justifies his position by showing he knows nothing about the case.

Mr. HEYBURN. Who does?

Mr. BAILEY. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. HEYBURN. That is rather a fresh statement, saying that I know nothing about the case.

Mr. BAILEY. Absolutely nothing.

Mr. HEYBURN. I do know something about the case. If the Senator knows more, it will be a duty devolving upon him to make the Senate aware of that fact.

Mr. CULBERSON. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Idaho yield to the Senator from Texas?

Mr. HEYBURN. Certainly.

Mr. CULBERSON. I understood the Senator from Idaho to say that the line as run in 1859-60, under the act of 1858, has never been approved. If the Senator will pardon me, I will read the provision of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, which is as follows:

The boundary line between said public-land strip and Texas, and between Texas and New Mexico, established under act of June 5, 1858, is hereby confirmed.

Mr. HEYBURN. That was the one hundred and third meridian.

Mr. CULBERSON. Oh, no. The act of 1850 fixed the one hundred and third meridian. The act of 1858 provided that that line should be run on the ground, and it was run on the ground. The act of 1891 approved it as established under the provisions of the act of 1858.

Mr. HEYBURN. The effect of the act of 1891 is very material to be considered in this matter, and the Senate surely should not act upon a question of this kind without having that act presented to it. Has the Senator the act?

Mr. CULBERSON. Of 1891?

Mr. HEYBURN. Yes.

Mr. CULBERSON. I have just read it.

Mr. HEYBURN. The Senator has read a few words.

Mr. CULBERSON. I have read all there is to it.

Mr. HEYBURN. The entire act?

Mr. CULBERSON. The entire act in so far as it refers to this question.

Mr. HEYBURN. May I impose upon the good nature of the Senator to ask him to read the language of that act again?

Mr. CULBERSON. I will, with pleasure.

The boundary line between said public-land strip and Texas—

That is what is called No Man's Land—and between Texas and New Mexico, established under act of June 5, 1858, is hereby confirmed.

The Senator will find it in the Twenty-sixth Statutes at Large, page 971.

Mr. HEYBURN. That is the line established now?

Mr. CULBERSON. If the Senator will pardon me, I will reiterate. The act of 1850 fixed the boundary line. In 1858 Congress provided for the running of that line on the ground, and it was run on the ground by a man by the name of John H. Clark. In 1891 Congress confirmed the line that was fixed under the act of 1858. Now, that is at least as plain as I can make it.

Mr. HEYBURN. I have something of Mr. Clark's report here before me in regard to the running of that line. I may indulge in reading a little of it. I want it thoroughly understood I have no feeling in this matter. It is like any other matter of public business. We have no right simply to sit here and pass it through because some one says that we ought to do it.

Mr. CULBERSON. If the Senator is going to object to the present consideration of the joint resolution, let him do so, but I submit to the Senator the time of the Senate ought not to be taken up in this way to determine whether he is going to object to its consideration. The only question before the Senate is whether the joint resolution shall be considered.

Mr. HEYBURN. I understand the joint resolution is before the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The joint resolution is not before the Senate.

Mr. HEYBURN. I think I will ask that it go over.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is made.

Mr. LODGE. Regular order!

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there further concurrent or other resolutions to be offered?

Mr. CULLOM. If there is no further morning business, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. LODGE. I hope that motion will not be made now.

Mr. CULLOM. I have no objection to withdrawing it if there is anything special to be presented to the Senate.

Mr. LODGE. I hope the matter of the Texas boundary will be taken up.

Mr. CULBERSON. Will the Senator from Illinois yield for that purpose?

Mr. CULLOM. I will yield to the Senator.

Mr. CULBERSON. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate joint resolution 124, reaffirming the boundary line between Texas and the Territory of New Mexico.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Secretary will call the roll.

The Secretary called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Bacon	Clark, Wyo.	Kean	Rayner
Bailey	Crawford	La Follette	Root
Borah	Culberson	Lodge	Scott
Bourne	Cullom	Money	Shively
Bradley	Dixon	Nelson	Smoot

Bristow	Fletcher	Overman	Taylor
Burkett	Flint	Owen	Terrell
Burrows	Gallinger	Page	Warner
Burton	Gamble	Penrose	Wetmore
Chamberlain	Heyburn	Percy	Young
Clapp	Jones	Piles

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Forty-seven Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

Mr. CULBERSON. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 124) reaffirming the boundary line between Texas and the Territory of New Mexico.

The motion was agreed to, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

The joint resolution was read, as follows:

Whereas the constitutional convention recently held in the Territory of New Mexico submitted for acceptance or rejection the draft of a proposed constitution for the State of New Mexico, to be voted upon by the voters of said proposed new State on the 21st day of January, 1911, which proposed constitution contains a clause attempting to annul and set aside the boundary lines heretofore legally run, marked, established, and ratified by the United States and the State of Texas, said lines between the Territory of New Mexico and the State of Texas having been run by John H. Clark, the boundary commissioner acting for the United States in 1859 and 1860, the said lines being now known and recognized as the Clark lines; and

Whereas the United States and the State of Texas have patented land based upon the Clark lines as the boundary between Texas and the Territory of New Mexico: Therefore be it

Resolved, etc., That any provision of said proposed constitution that in any way tends to annul or change the boundary lines between the State of Texas and the Territory or State of New Mexico shall be of no force or effect, but shall be construed so as not in any way to change, affect, or alter the said boundary lines known as the Clark lines and heretofore run and marked by him as a commissioner on the part of the United States and concurred in by the State of Texas, and the former ratification of said Clark lines by the United States by the act approved March 3, 1891, and the State of Texas by the joint resolution passed March 25, 1891, shall be held and deemed a conclusive location and settlement of said boundary lines.

SEC. 2. That the President of the United States is hereby authorized, in conjunction with the State of Texas, to reestablish and re-mark the boundary lines heretofore established and marked by John H. Clark between New Mexico and the State of Texas, and for such purpose he is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint a commissioner, who, in conjunction with such commissioner as may be appointed by and on behalf of the State of Texas for the same purpose, shall re-mark the boundary between the Territory of New Mexico and the State of Texas as follows: Beginning at the point where the one hundred and third degree of longitude west from Greenwich intersects the parallel of 36 degrees and 30 minutes north latitude, as determined and fixed by John H. Clark, the commissioner on the part of the United States in the years 1859 and 1860; thence south with the line run by said Clark for the said one hundred and third degree of longitude to the thirty-second parallel of north latitude to the point marked by said Clark as the southeast corner of New Mexico; and thence west with the thirty-second degree of north latitude as determined by said Clark to the Rio Grande.

SEC. 3. That the part of the line run and marked by monuments along the thirty-second parallel of north latitude and that part of the line marked by monuments along the one hundred and third degree of longitude west from Greenwich, the same being the east and west and north and south lines between Texas and New Mexico, and run by authority of the act of Congress approved June 5, 1858, and known as the Clark lines, which said lines as run by said Clark have been confirmed, as aforesaid, by the act of Congress approved March 3, 1891, and the joint resolution of the legislature of Texas passed March 25, 1891, shall remain the true boundary lines of Texas and New Mexico:

Provided, That it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed under this act to re-mark said old Clark monuments and line where they can be found and identified by the original monuments now on the ground, or where monuments are now missing or the lines can not be found but their original position can be shown by competent parol evidence or by the topographic maps or field notes made by said Clark, the monuments so found or their position so identified shall determine the true position and course of the boundary lines as marked by said Clark to the full extent of the survey made by him, and where no survey was actually originally made on said lines it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to run a straight line between the nearest points determined by the Clark map, field notes, and survey, and when said straight lines have been so run, marked, and agreed upon by the commissioners they shall thereafter form the true boundary lines.

Sec. 4. That the sum of $20,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, be, and the same is hereby, appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to carry out the purposes of this act: Provided, That the person or persons appointed and employed on the part of the State of Texas shall be paid by the said State.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I have not the slightest feeling of antagonism in this matter. Residents of New Mexico have presented their claim to this land to me and called my attention to the fact that the new State was about to be despoiled to the extent of this strip. When they called my attention to it I took occasion to look into the matter, and I have not gone outside of the records of Congress in doing so. Of course, I have no feeling against Texas. It makes not the slightest difference whether Texas gets it or New Mexico, except that Congress is here to do that which is right. I know of no reason why the matter should be rushed through to-day except it is on the principle that when a certain whistle blows you have got to get off the track—that is about the only thing I know—and if you do not the steam roller will run over you. Well, I should like to feel the pressure of a steam roller once, anyhow, and see how it feels.

Mr. President, if this were a new question it might be necessary to go at great length into the relations between Texas and the United States; but it is not. I am going to state a fact that is stated of record. The Government of the United States paid the State of Texas $10,000,000 for this strip of land. Does any Senator controvert that? The question was an issue. The Government paid the State of Texas $10,000,000 for this land.

Mr. BAILEY. For this strip?

Mr. HEYBURN. Is that controverted?

Mr. BAILEY. Of course it is.

Mr. HEYBURN. Then, all right; I will proceed, because I do not care to discuss questions that are not controverted.

Mr. BAILEY. The Government of the United States paid the State of Texas $10,000,000 for an immensely large area of land. Even if this were included in it, this was an infinitesimal part of the purchase that the United States made from Texas.

Mr. HEYBURN. When the question was under discussion on a former occasion in Congress the facts were very well grouped and stated by Mr. PAYNE. In dealing with it he said:

My first recollection of this matter was at the session of the Fifty-ninth Congress, when a bill came up unexpectedly to enable Texas to annex some 600,000 acres of land from the Territory of New Mexico.

Those conditions seem to have been repeated here this morning—the joint resolution comes up unexpectedly.

It was here with a favorable report from the Committee on the Judiciary, the gentleman from Iowa, Mr. Birdsall, having made the report.

Mr. PAYNE proceeds:

I got all the facts which I knew at that time in regard to that case from the favorable report of Mr. Birdsall, because, fortunately, he had placed the documents of the United States in the report which showed that Texas had no right to this 600,000 acres of land, which was worth then and is worth now $20 an acre, or more than $12,000,000.

It seems that in 1850 Texas was claiming all of this land now in dispute, and there was an arrangement made between Texas and the United States, ratified by Congress and by the legislature of Texas, whereby the lines for the Panhandle were described as bounded on the east by the Red River and by the one hundredth meridian, and on the north by latitude 36.30, and on the west by the one hundred and third degree of longitude west of Greenwich. That was agreed to by both parties, and Texas relinquished all lands outside of that, and in consideration the United States paid Texas $12,000,000 in money. So that we had a pretty good title to that land.

The land they paid $12,000,000 for was everything that Texas might claim or did claim west of the one hundred and third meridian.

Afterwards there was some dispute about where the one hundred and third meridian actually was and where the one hundredth actually was. An act was passed by Congress, accepted by the Texas Legislature, that each party should appoint one commissioner, who should go and survey these lands—the one hundredth meridian west of Greenwich and the one hundred and third degree of longitude west of Greenwich. One John H. Clark was sent by the Government.

The act was passed in 1858 and he was sent there in 1859. Texas also sent a surveyor, who stayed on the job a few weeks, got tired, and quit, and left Clark to finish the job and the survey. The point was to establish the one hundred and third meridian and the one hundredth meridian. Mr. Clark went to work, and by establishing the one hundredth meridian at Kansas line, or by ascertaining where it had been established by a previous surveyor. He surveyed back and got down into Texas and fixed the monument at the one hundred and third meridian, and I think the monument is there to-day.

But the one hundred and third meridian at the Kansas line had been established 2½ miles west of where it ought to be by the mistake of a former surveyor, and subsequently the United States sent another surveyor there with better methods, and by triangulation and observation of the moon and the stars, and so forth, he established the true meridian at the Kansas line and moved it 2 miles and a little over east of where it had been located before, and that is the line as located to-day.

Afterwards the Government of the United States sent Mr. Kidder, a surveyor and engineer, there to go over the lines of Mr. Clark. What did he find? This one hundredth meridian was located 11 chains and 26 links west of the true meridian. He had consequently taken a little land from Texas and given it to the Indian Territory. On the north line he had one end of it a few chains out of the way to the south and the other end of it a few chains out of line to the north of the true parallel of latitude. On the one hundred and third meridian he found that Surveyor Clark had started in first at the southern line of New Mexico and located the one hundred and third meridian, and he established the meridian there, or the point for the meridian, 3 miles 67 chains and 35 links west of the true meridian, as afterwards ascertained by Kidder, and the undoubted meridian as it stands to-day. He went on a few miles farther and surveyed a line north and south.

That line there, I think, is about 600 miles—the whole line along the Texas border on the west, between that and New Mexico.

He was interrupted by Mr. STEPHENS of Texas, who said:

To be exact, it is 310 miles.

The misstatement of the figure is obvious. Mr. PAYNE then said:

Oh, if the gentleman had less zeal, and had pursued this matter a little more in the line of openness from the beginning of the time he referred this joint resolution until now, he would appear better in correcting a few mistakes of that kind.

Proceeding, speaking of this engineer, he says:

Then he went to the northwest corner, and at the northwest corner he started again on what he said was the true meridian, one hundred and third west, and that point happened to be 2 miles 5 chains and 57 links west of the true meridian, and it has since been located, without any question at all; and he went along down the line and gradually closed in a little on the true meridian two-thirds of the way, perhaps three-fifths of the way, down the line. Then he got tired altogether and quit the job. I believe then 1862 had come around, and there might have been reason for his stopping at that time. He never completed the survey, and he left an opening there that has never been surveyed from a point 2 miles and 5 chains west of the true meridian about two-thirds down the line to a point 3 miles 67 chains and 35 links to a point four-fifths of the way down the line—in all, about 130 miles—so that that has never been surveyed—

That is, the 130 miles—

and Texas has no more claim to it than has the State of New York. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. STEPHENS] says this survey was established by the United States by an act of Congress later in an appropriation bill, the sundry civil appropriation bill. A survey was made under the act of June 5, 1858. The survey was not to make a boundary line. The survey was to find the true boundary line—

That is a very important statement to be borne in mind—

which was the one hundred and third meridian, and for no other purpose. This language was slipped into the appropriation bill—

The language is as follows:

And the boundary line between said public-land strip and Texas and Texas and New Mexico established under the act of June 5, 1858, is hereby confirmed.

I wonder if that is the language the Senator from Texas referred to.

It confirmed the boundary line established June 5, 1858, and the act of 1858 made the boundary line the one hundred and third meridian.

The act provided that the boundary line should be by reference to the meridians. The amendment to which I think the Senator from Texas refers related to that action of Congress. The action of Congress did not refer to any stakes upon the ground; it referred to the description of that boundary line in the act of 1858. I read that paragraph:

It confirmed the boundary line established June 5, 1858, and the act of 1858 made the boundary line the one hundred and third meridian; and so it simply confirmed the establishment of the boundary line and said nothing about Clark's survey of the boundary line. There is no question of that kind; it settled no question of that kind.

I think that is a complete answer to the suggestion of the senior Senator from Texas.

I got what facts I could out of the report in the Fifty-ninth Congress and presented them to the House, and the bill was beaten.

I am reading now from remarks made by Mr. PAYNE:

The next Congress the gentleman presented his bill and it went to the Committee on the Judiciary. The Committee on the Judiciary would not report the bill, or else they reported it adversely; I do not remember which. They were all against it. There it laid during the Sixtieth Congress. In this Congress the gentleman comes in in this fashion. He introduces a joint resolution with this title:

"Authorizing the President of the United States, in conjunction with the State of Texas, to reestablish and re-mark the boundary lines between the Indian Territory and the State of Texas, and for other purposes."

There is not a word said about the boundary line between Texas and New Mexico, but he adds the words "and for other purposes." Why? The Committee on Indian Affairs had nothing to do with questions between the United States and the Territory of New Mexico.

Such things must go to the Judiciary Committee or to the Committee on Territories, but the Committee on Indian Affairs could not get jurisdiction of that bill with an honest title. Under the guise of that name which he gave to this child he sent it to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and he is the ranking minority member of the Committee on Indian Affairs, and has been there for a good many years. It is reported out with this amendment to the title:

"Amend the title so as to read:

"Joint resolution authorizing the President of the United States, in conjunction with the State of Texas, the Territory of New Mexico, and the State of Oklahoma, to rerun and re-mark the boundary lines between said States and Territory, and for other purposes."

Of course, that meant to re-run and re-mark it along the one hundred and third meridian. It could not mean anything else.

The Indian Territory comes in under the other purposes now, and still the Indian Territory had got to be the State of Oklahoma at the time he introduced this joint resolution, but there was enough of the shade of the Indian Territory left to get the bill into the Committee on Indian Affairs and get a report of the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. MONDELL asked:

Was the Kidder line monumented throughout its full length, so that there is no question about its location?

Mr. PAYNE. It was monumented so that there is no question about the location of this meridian.

It was simply establishing the meridian and going over Clark's work to see whether he had established it in the true place. I have a report here in full showing a diagram and showing the differences. Now, when he came to re-form this resolution in order to have it reported to the House, he said:

"That the monument established (under authority of the act of Congress approved January 15, 1901) by Arthur D. Kidder, United States examiner of surveys, as the point of intersection of the true one hundredth meridian with the Red River shall be accepted and ratified as correct."

I doubt the authority of Congress to change the meridians, the lines on the world. It can not change the fact as to where a meridian is by saying it shall be somewhere else.

In answer to the suggestion of a Senator, privately made, I may say it is not my intention to filibuster on this bill. I intend that the record shall be such as to indicate to whoever may hereafter refer to it that the Senate performed its duty in considering the measure.

Remember now that Clark in establishing this one hundredth meridian established it to the west, away from the true meridian, and took some land of the State of Texas and added it to the Indian Territory, now the State of Oklahoma, and this generous gentleman from Texas, coming from a State holding all of her public lands in fee simple when it came into the Union, coming from a State that gave this original land in New Mexico at a price of $12,000,000, which was paid from the Treasury of the United States—which was paid from the Treasury of the United States, this very generous gentleman, this very just gentleman, when he comes to have this commission examine the line between the Indian Territory and the State of Texas, goes back to the Kidder survey, which locates this one hundredth meridian many chains to the east of the Clark survey, and locates it there in order that the State of Texas might get back the land which the Clark survey would take away from it on the east.

I call the attention of the junior Senator from Texas to this statement—

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas interrupts:

Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MONDELL. On the north line.

Mr. PAYNE. On the east line—

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Is it not a fact that—

Mr. PAYNE. I have not time now to yield to the gentleman. If I have time, I will, when I have concluded, answer all the questions of the gentleman. He further says in the joint resolution:

"Provided, That the part of a line run and marked by a monument along the thirty-second parallel of north latitude, and that part of the line run and marked along the one hundred and third degree of longitude west of Greenwich, the same being the east-and-west and north-and-south lines between Texas and New Mexico, and run by authority of act of Congress approved June 5, 1858, known as the Clark lines, and that part of the line along the parallel of 36° and 30' of north latitude, forming the north boundary line of the Panhandle of Texas, and which said parts of said lines have been confirmed by acts of Congress—"

I pause here to call attention to the fact that it was not claimed, even by the Member introducing the joint resolution in the interest of this movement, that the whole lines had been run. There are 120 or 130 miles of line that never were run, and they did not claim that they had been run when they sought to get the authority of Congress to assume jurisdiction over that strip of land.

The joint resolution further says:

That it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed under this act to re-mark said old Clark monuments and lines where they can be found and identified by the original monuments now found on the ground, or where monuments are now missing, but their original position can be shown by competent parol evidence, or by the topographical maps, or field notes made by said Clark; the monuments so found, or their position so identified, shall determine the true position and course of the boundary lines as marked by said Clark to the full extent of the survey made by him; and where no survey was actually originally made on said lines it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to run a straight line between the nearest points determined by the Clark survey, and when said straight lines have been so run, marked, and agreed upon by the commissioners they shall thereafter form the true boundary lines.

That is assuming it was run upon the one hundred and third meridian. It says:

He names the "true meridian" at the one hundredth degree west of Greenwich, not the old Clark survey. Why? Because that does not take any land from Texas and give it to Oklahoma as the Clark survey did. Then when he gets to the one hundred and third degree he wants to have the lines of the Clark survey so far as they exist now, because that gives 3 miles in width of additional territory to Texas to come out of New Mexico.

That is to say, when the controversy was between Oklahoma and Texas, Texas receded. When the controversy reached the line of New Mexico, Texas insisted. Mr. MONDELL said:

The purpose, then, I understand, is to follow the Kidder survey where the Kidder survey gives more land to Texas and to follow the Clark survey where the Clark survey gives more land to Texas.

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly, that is it. And what else do you expect from a gentleman whose State received $12,000,000 for this land and comes in now, 60 years afterwards, and tries to get it back by reason of an incomplete, unfinished survey, palpably incorrect, and demonstrated to be wrong.

Every word of information that I have given you has come from the documents of the United States.

Now, I have seen fit to use that summing up that it may go in the record in the consideration of this question by the Senate, that it may not appear that we in this body neither knew nor cared to know the facts.

I have not the slightest intention to delay the consideration of this measure. I think it unfortunate that a measure of this kind should come up at this time. But I am clearly within my rights when I discuss it under the rules of the Senate. I have no action to propose in regard to this joint resolution. I think it is hasty, improvident legislation, and that the conclusion reached is wrong. I do not believe for a moment that the Senator from Texas, or either Senator from Texas, would claim that land for which the State had been paid $12,000,000 by the Government should go back to the State without some compensation to the Government.

The people who are most interested in this are the people who came to me some days ago and called my attention to the fact—and upon that information I have provided myself with some facts in regard to it—that New Mexico would lose this very large and very valuable strip of land, probably above the average of the best land in the State, or what may be the State, of New Mexico. They say that even though the rights of the school fund are recognized, it will be the school fund of Texas and not of New Mexico. They say they are entitled to this area, and that they have regarded it as a part of New Mexico; and the wisdom of the Senate a few brief weeks ago would indicate that they had some reason for so regarding it.

The constitutional convention in New Mexico, describing their boundaries, conformed to the agreement that was reached between Texas—then an independent government—and the United States Government. The boundary line is described as being "thence along said one hundred and third meridian to the thirty-second parallel of north latitude," and so forth, recognizing this meridian.

It does not come with good grace to claim that the people of New Mexico have not considered this a part of that Territory or that they do not care for it. They have taken it in express terms within the boundaries of the State they are seeking to build.

I sincerely hope that the Senators from Texas will not for a moment imagine that I have in my heart any grudge or feeling adverse to Texas, or that I would not have raised this question had it been the State of Idaho or the State of Pennsylvania, or any other State. The duty of a Senator in this body is far above any such motives. But the duty of a Senator in this body is imperative; that he shall exercise a judgment in conformity with his conscience in order that justice may be done through our proceedings.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. CULBERSON. I ask that the report from the Committee on the Judiciary may be printed in the RECORD.

The report submitted by Mr. CULBERSON on the 19th instant was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The Committee on the Judiciary, which has had under consideration Senate joint resolution 124 (61st Cong., 3d sess.), for reasons hereafter fully stated report the same favorably and recommend its passage.

The contention of the constitutional convention of New Mexico, which is referred to in the joint resolution, seems to be that the boundary line of the Texas Panhandle on the west from latitude 36.30° north to latitude 32° north is located west of the true one hundred and third meridian of longitude west from Greenwich, and that a strip of territory between the true one hundred and third meridian and the line as now established and recognized by the United States and the State of Texas, about 310 miles in length, and varying in width from a little over to considerably less than 3 miles, of right belongs to New Mexico.

SUMMARY OF THE LEGISLATION ENACTED BY THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF TEXAS WITH REFERENCE TO THIS BOUNDARY AND OFFICIAL ACTS OF THE EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS OF BOTH GOVERNMENTS WITH REGARD THERETO.

The United States, by act of the Congress approved September 9, 1850 (9 Stat. L., p. 446), proposed to the State of Texas that in consideration of the payment of $10,000,000 to her the State would cede certain territory to the United States, and agree that her boundary on the north should commence at the intersection of the one hundredth meridian of longitude west from Greenwich and the parallel of 36.30° north latitude; run thence due west to the one hundred and third meridian of longitude west from Greenwich; thence due south along said meridian to the thirty-second degree of north latitude, etc.; the line from the intersection of the one hundred and third meridian and 36.30° north latitude south to 32° north latitude to constitute the boundary line between the Texas Panhandle and New Mexico.

By an act of her legislature approved November 25, 1850 (Gammel's Laws of Texas, vol. 3, p. 833), this proposal was accepted by the State of Texas.

The legislature of the State of Texas, by an act approved February 11, 1854 (Gammel's Laws of Texas, vol. 3, p. 1525), provided for the appointment of a commissioner by the governor to act in conjunction with a commissioner to be appointed by the United States in running and marking the line here under discussion between the State of Texas and the Territory of New Mexico, in accordance with the compact of 1850.

An act of the Congress approved June 5, 1858 (11 Stat. L., 310), provided for the appointment of a commissioner by the President of the United States to act in conjunction with the Texas commissioner in running and marking, among others, this line.

Pursuant to these acts by the legislatures of their respective governments, in 1858 John H. Clark was appointed commissioner on behalf of the United States, and William R. Scurry commissioner on behalf of the State of Texas. After some correspondence between the Secretary of the Interior and the governor of Texas it was decided to begin running and marking the line between Texas and New Mexico at the Rio Grande; thence eastward along the thirty-second parallel to the one hundred and third meridian; and thence north along that meridian as far as practicable. (Ex. Doc. No. 70, 47th Cong., 1st sess., pp. 208, 207.)

The survey was begun on the ground by the joint commissioners January 3, 1859, and the intersection of the Rio Grande and the thirty-second parallel having been determined, the line was run eastward and marked along that parallel to the one hundred and third meridian, or what was determined to be the one hundred and third meridian, by transfer from Frontera, Mexico, in accordance with instructions to Commissioner Clark by the Secretary of the Interior. (Ex. Doc. No. 70, p. 264.) On the 23d of May, 1859, the running and marking of the one hundred and third meridian north was begun and continued by John H. Clark alone, the Texas commissioner having abandoned the work. Clark ran and marked the line north 70 miles, or a little beyond the thirty-third degree of latitude (ib., p. 298). Finding it impracticable, because of scarcity of water, to proceed farther, he then returned west to the Pecos River, and proceeded up that river and across to the intersection of the one hundred and third meridian and 36.30° north latitude. He located that intersection, which constituted the northwest corner of Texas, by observations to obtain the latitude, and by taking up the one hundred and third meridian, as then established, at the Kansas boundary and transferring it to latitude 36.30°. In accordance with his instructions from the Secretary of the Interior (ib., p. 265). Having been joined at this intersection by another Texas commissioner, the prolongation of the one hundred and third meridian south was begun on August 23, 1859 (ib., p. 299), and continued to a point south of the thirty-fourth degree of north latitude (ib., p. 278), where, because of the lateness of the season and the occurrence of a succession of sand hills, the work was halted late in October, and never resumed along this meridian by him or any other commissioner representing the United States.

Commissioner Clark, in his report of October 27, 1859, to the Secretary of the Interior, states that he ran the line on the one hundred and third meridian north (from its intersection with the thirty-second parallel) 70 miles (ib., p. 279); and that he ran and marked the line on the one hundred and third meridian south from its intersection with latitude 36.30°, 184 miles (ib., p. 280), erecting altogether on both lines 26 monuments, chiefly of earth and stone. (ib., pp. 302, 303.)

The Commissioner of the General Land Office of the United States in a letter to the Secretary of the Interior, of date January 11, 1882, states that the office work connected with his surveys was never completed by Commissioner Clark, but that all of the field work was executed except a part of the west boundary which was not run, viz, from 33 north latitude to 33.45 north latitude (ib., p. 1), which substantially agrees with Clark's report of October 24, 1859, that—

"After the establishment and marking of the corner the one hundred and third meridian was taken up and surveyed across the Canadian and to a point on the Llano Estacado south of the thirty-fourth parallel, a distance, with the survey from the Kansas boundary, of about 240 miles." (ib., p. 278.)

And his letter of July 16, 1860, that he purposes "running out and marking the arc that remains (about 50') of this meridian on my return," referring, of course, to the hiatus between the thirty-third and thirty-fourth parallels which had not been actually run on the ground. (ib., p. 280.)

This left a hiatus of about 56 miles between the termini of Clark's north and south lines along the one hundred and third meridian, covering the greater portion of the western boundaries of the present counties of Yoakum and Cochran, in the State of Texas, and a portion of the eastern boundary of the county of Chaves, in New Mexico.

By the act of March 3, 1891, the Congress of the United States confirmed and adopted the lines run and marked by Commissioner Clark in the following language:

"That the boundary line between said public-land strip and Texas and between Texas and New Mexico established under the act of June 5, 1858, is hereby confirmed." (26 Stat. L., p. 971.)

This act of the Congress was in terms accepted by a joint resolution of the legislature of the State of Texas passed on March 25, 1891, duly establishing and accepting the lines laid down by Clark as the true boundary line between Texas and New Mexico. (Gammel's Laws of Texas, vol. 10, p. 196.)

CONNECTION OF THE TERMINI OF CLARK'S LINES.

In 1892 W. D. Twitchell, a special deputy surveyor of the Howard land district in the State of Texas, and Mark Howell, county surveyor of Chaves County, N. Mex., as disclosed by a report bearing date August 24, 1892, which is printed in full in House Report No. 1788 (59th Cong., 1st sess., pp. 9-13), retraced Clark's line from the southeast corner of New Mexico to its termination, 70 miles north, which they determined to be latitude 33° 58', and thence ran and marked a line connecting that point with the termination of Clark's 184-mile line down the one hundred and third meridian from the northwest corner of Texas, the hiatus or gap thus connected by Twitchell and Howell being 56 miles 296 varas long. Twitchell was an official surveyor, acting under due appointment and direction of the commissioner of the general land office of the State of Texas, and Howell was the county surveyor of Chaves County, N. Mex., in the absence of other information acting presumably under that section of the laws of the Territorial Assembly of New Mexico of 1891 (chap. 33, Laws 1891), providing:

"Where a boundary line between two counties is to be established, the county surveyors or their deputies of the two counties affected by such boundaries shall together make the survey and establish the line and erect monuments, etc."

In a letter dated November 30, 1910, the acting commissioner of the general land office of the State of Texas, among other things, says, in regard to this Twitchell-Howell line connecting the termini of Clark's lines:

"The report and the plat filed by Mr. Twitchell was approved by Land Commissioner W. L. McGaughey, and the line surveyed by him platted upon the maps of Cochran and Yoakum Counties, and it has uniformly been shown by those maps since the report was filed. * * * All sections or surveys of land except three touching the line (the Twitchell-Howell line) which connects the termini of Clark's lines belong to the permanent free-school fund and have been sold. * * * The State, acting through its general land office, has proceeded to treat the line run by Mr. Twitchell as the correct boundary. * * * There are 47 sections or surveys of school land and 3 sections of private land whose western lines coincide with that portion of the State boundary run by Mr. Twitchell."

The report by Twitchell and Howell of their survey indicates that in connecting the termini of Clark's lines they followed the correct surveyor's rule and the rule of law, and the rule confirmed and adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States in Land Company v. Saunders (103 U. S., 323):

"That where two points of a survey can be definitely located and the ensuing call for direction from either will not connect them the proper method is to connect them by the line of shortest distance between them."

IDENTIFICATION AND RETRACEMENT OF CLARK'S LINES.

Commissioner Clark erected 26 monuments, chiefly of earth and stone, upon the lines he ran along the one hundred and third meridian (Ex. Doc. 70 ante, pp. 302, 303).

Bulletin No. 194, series F, Geological Survey (U. S.), gives the following information in regard to the retracing of Clark's line running southerly from the northwest corner of Texas and the identification of his monuments:

"In 1882-1885 W. S. Mabry, district surveyor of Dallam, Hartley, and Oldham Counties, located certainly the northwest corner of Texas, as fixed by Clark in 1859, the same constituting the northwest corner of the X I T pasture fence. Mabry ran the western boundary line of Texas thence southward along Clark's old line (p. 29), identifying Clark's monuments 15, 16, 17, and 20 (pp. 39, 40)."

Clark's monuments 15 and 16 on his old line, as identified by Mabry, were also identified by United States Surveyors Taylor and Fuss on March 5 and 6, 1883 (pp. 29, 30).

In 1900 Levi S. Preston, a United States deputy surveyor, entered into a contract with the General Land Office of the United States to redetermine and retrace Clark's line along the northern part of the one hundred and third meridian and connect his surveys in New Mexico therewith. In the report of his survey Preston states that he spared neither time nor expense in seeking to properly relocate this line, riding more than 200 miles on horseback to interview old-timers who had assisted in building the X I T pasture fence, which coincided with Clark's line as retraced by Mabry; and that he also had a conference with Mabry, and received from the latter a copy of his retracement made in 1882-1885 of Clark's line. Thereafter, on July 11, 1900, Preston positively identified Clark's monuments 15 and 17, which Mabry had previously identified and used in his retracement of the line (p. 39). Preston also found Clark's monument 16, and satisfied himself that the stone placed by Mabry on the State line was in the position of Clark's old monument 20 (p. 40). Preston further states that he excavated around the northwest corner of the X I T fence, which Mabry found marked with a large mound of earth and a cedar post suitably inscribed, and accordingly adopted as the northwest corner of Texas as located by Clark. Preston also was satisfied from his investigations that this corner was the true northwest corner of Texas as located by Clark, saying:

"This point being almost in true alignment with the old Clark monuments found 37 miles and 75 miles south, agreeing very closely with Mr. Mabry's tie of 1882, and within 150 links of the proper position east of the Johnson monument, as determined in 1858 and 1859, therefore I set a sandstone 60 by 12 by 10 inches, 36 inches in the ground, for the northwest corner of the State of Texas, marked 'N. W. cor. Texas.'" on east; 'N. M.' on west; '1859' on south; and '1900' on north faces (p. 41)."

Preston's retracement of Clark's line extended from the Canadian River to the northwest corner, a distance of 76 miles (p. 37).

The monument erected by Clark at the southeast corner of New Mexico, the beginning of his projection of the one hundred and third meridian northward, in 1859, has been positively identified, both as to that monument itself and also by bearings obtained from his last or thirty-first monument on the thirty-second parallel. (H. Rept. 1788, 59th Cong., 1st sess.) This corner monument was adopted as the starting point of their survey northward along the old Clark line by Twitchell and Howell in 1892. From this starting point they retraced Clark's line 70 miles north, identifying several of his monuments, and thereafter connected the northern end of his 70-mile line with the southern terminus of his 184-mile line, as heretofore described. (See report, ante.)

EXERCISE OF SOVEREIGNTY BY THE STATE OF TEXAS OVER THE TERRITORY EAST OF THE LINES, AND ACQUIESCENCE BY THE UNITED STATES THERETO.

Surveyors of the State of Texas have run and marked this western boundary along various portions of Clark's lines.

By an act of the legislature of the State, approved February 20, 1879, all the vacant and unappropriated public domain among others, in the counties of Dallam, Hartley, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Farmer, Bailey, and Cochran, the western boundaries of which, in their order as named, extend for 210 miles from the northwest corner of the State south along its western boundary, was appropriated and set apart for the purpose of erecting a new State capitol. Under this act patents were issued by the State to all of the land running from the northwest corner of Texas for 150 miles down this western boundary line—the Clark line—which had unquestionably been run and marked upon the ground in 1859 for that distance. Fences were erected along this 150-mile strip, and more than two-thirds of the land adjacent thereto has been sold by the syndicate first acquiring it, and it is now owned by many diverse owners.

As said by the land commissioner of the State of Texas in a letter to the governor of the State on December 17, 1902:

"A great number of titles have been patented to people along said lines, who in many instances have erected valuable and permanent improvements thereon."

The town of Farwell, the county seat of Farmer County, Tex., a place of several hundred inhabitants, with numerous valuable buildings and other improvements, is located wholly upon the territory which the constitutional convention of New Mexico claims.

Necessarily, the State of Texas has assessed and collected taxes upon all of the lands it has sold and all that privately owned along these lines. The citizens resident along it have exercised the right of suffrage in Texas. Their children have been included in the school census of the State and the funds of the State appropriated and paid out for their education. In short, the State has exercised complete political and police jurisdiction over them and over their property for a series of years.

Nor have any of these acts been in anywise controverted or questioned by any department of the United States. On the other hand, as disclosed by a letter from the Commissioner of the General Land Office of the United States under date of January 31, 1906 (House report, ante, p. 5), that office, properly regardless of the rights of the State of Texas, after stating that certain surveys of public land recently made in New Mexico had been terminated at points "indisputably west of the so-called syndicate fence, which, it has been determined, is approximately in the location of the Clark line," states that it "has so framed instructions as to avoid any steps being taken which would tend toward encouraging encroachment by public-land claimants upon lands east of the syndicate fence." This syndicate fence was built upon Mabry's retracement in 1882-1885 of Clark's line of 1859, and Mabry's retracement was verified, for 76 miles at least, by United States Surveyor Preston in 1900.

Henry Gannett, the geographer of the United States Geological Survey, in a bulletin published by the Department of the Interior in 1904, treats this boundary as settled, saying at page 113:

"The boundary lines between Texas and New Mexico were run and marked in 1859-60 under the Department of the Interior."

While no right has ever existed in the Territorial government of New Mexico to authoritatively raise any contention whatever in regard to this boundary, it may be noted that an examination of the acts of the Territorial assembly from 1897 to 1909, inclusive, fails to disclose the passage or adoption of any statute, resolution, or memorial in any way questioning the boundary or seeking to set up any adverse claim to the ownership exercised by the State of Texas.

It is reasonably clear that Clark did not establish the true astronomical one hundred and third meridian, yet it is no longer an open question that ancient errors in the running and marking of a boundary line, which have been accepted and acted upon and acquiesced in by both parties, can not be corrected.

The Supreme Court of the United States in Virginia v. Tennessee (148 U. S., 525) settled that question when it said:

"Nor is it any objection that there may have been errors in the demarcation of the line which the States themselves by their compact sanctioned. After such compacts have been adhered to for years, neither party can be absolved from them upon showing errors, mistakes, or misapprehension of their terms, or in the line established, and this is a complete and perfect answer to the complainant's position in this case."

In the more recent case of Louisiana v. Mississippi (202 U. S.) the Supreme Court say, at page 54:

"Moreover, it appears from the record that the various departments of the United States Government have recognized Louisiana's ownership of the disputed area, that Louisiana has always asserted it, and that Mississippi has repeatedly recognized it, and not until recently has disputed it."

"The question is one of boundary, and this court has many times held that, as between the States of the Union, long acquiescence in the assertion of a particular boundary, and the exercise of dominion and sovereignty over the territory within it, should be accepted as conclusive."

Citing Virginia v. Tennessee, supra, and other authorities.

It should be noted that the court in this last case cites the bulletin of the Geological Survey compiled by Henry Gannett in 1904, heretofore quoted from in this report.

In the very recent case of Maryland v. West Virginia (217 U. S., 1), decided February 21, 1910, the Supreme Court of the United States specifically held that even if a meridian boundary line is not astronomically correct it should not be overthrown after it has been recognized for many years and become the basis for public and private rights of property (p. 44).

When it is recalled that the northwest corner of Texas, as located by Clark in 1859, has been definitely identified by both United States and Texas surveyors; that three of the monuments erected by Clark upon the line he ran and marked from that corner south have likewise been identified by surveyors of both Governments and the position of a fourth definitely determined; that the monument erected by him at the other end of the line fixing the southeast corner of New Mexico was still upon the ground in 1892, is now definitely marked and was used as a starting point in 1892 by Surveyor Twitchell, acting officially for the State of Texas, and Surveyor Howell, the county surveyor of Chaves County, N. Mex., and that they identified several of Clark's monuments along the line he ran thence northward, the following language of the Supreme Court in the case last cited seems peculiarly pertinent:

"It may be true that an attempt to relocate the Deakins line will show that it is somewhat irregular and not a uniform astronomical north-and-south line, but both surveyors appointed by the States represented in this controversy were able to locate a number of points along the line, and the north limit thereof is fixed by a mound and was located by the commissioners who fixed the boundary between West Virginia and Pennsylvania by a monument which was erected at that point; and we think, from the evidence in this record, that it can be located, with little difficulty by competent commissioners."

It is unnecessary to discuss the proposition that the enabling act to admit New Mexico into the Union as a State in nowise changes the present status of this boundary line, nor would its actual admission as a State. Directly in point, however, are these excerpts from the opinion of the Supreme Court in the case of Missouri v. Iowa (7 How., 667):

"The present controversy originated in 1837 between the United States and the State of Missouri, and was carried on for 10 years before Iowa was admitted as a State. Previous to the controversy, and after Missouri came into the Union in 1821, many acts had been done by both parties most materially affecting the controversy, and tending to compromise the claims now set up, the one side as well as the other. The new State of Iowa came into the Union December 27, 1847, and up to this date she was bound by the acts of her predecessor, the United States, forasmuch as the latter might have directly conceded to Missouri a new boundary on the north, as was done on the west; and so, likewise, Iowa is bound by the acts and admissions of the United States tending indirectly to confirm and establish a particular line as the northern boundary of Missouri."

And at page 674:

"From these facts it is too manifest for argument to make it more so, that the United States was committed to this line when Iowa came into the Union; and as already stated, Iowa must abide by the condition of her predecessor and can not now be heard to disavow the old Indian line as her true southern boundary."

Summarizing them, the facts appear to be:

(1) That the one hundred and third meridian from latitude 36.30 north, south to latitude 32 north, was adopted as the western boundary line of the Texas Panhandle by compact between the Governments of the United States and the State of Texas in 1850.

(2) That 70 miles were run and marked northward along the one hundred and third meridian from the southeast corner of New Mexico, and 184 miles were run and marked southward along said meridian from the northwest corner of Texas by John H. Clark, commissioner for the United States, in the year 1859.

(3) That a portion of Clark's old line south from the northwest corner of Texas along the one hundred and third meridian was retraced by W. S. Mabry, an official surveyor of the State of Texas, in the years 1882-1885, and four of Clark's monuments, including the one marking the northwest corner, identified certainly, and the position of one other (No. 20) accurately. That Clark's monuments 15 and 16 so identified by Mabry were likewise identified by United States Surveyors Taylor and Fuss in 1883.

(4) That the Congress of the United States and the legislature of the State of Texas by appropriate legislative enactments in 1891 adopted Clark's lines, as run and marked on the ground, as the true boundary.

(5) That the Clark line for the 70 miles north from the southeast corner of New Mexico has been retraced and his monuments identified in a joint survey by surveyors of Texas and New Mexico, who also ran and marked a line connecting the termini of Clark's north and south lines in 1892, and that this latter line bridging the gap has been officially recognized and acted upon by the State of Texas and acquiesced in by the United States.

(6) That State Surveyor Mabry's line from the northwest corner south for 76 miles was retraced by United States Surveyor Preston, and the Clark monuments identified by Mabry likewise identified by Preston, and the northwest corner fixed by Mabry found to be correct by Preston and adopted and properly marked by the latter in 1900.

(7) That the State of Texas has sold nearly all of the land whose western boundaries coincide with Clark's lines; and also all of the land, except three sections privately owned, whose western boundary coincides with the line run by Twitchell and Howell in 1892 connecting the termini of Clark's lines.

(8) That the State has for many years exercised complete political and police jurisdiction over the territory east of the Clark lines and the Twitchell-Howell line.

(9) That the United States have acquiesced in such acts of ownership and jurisdiction by the State, and officially recognized the Clark lines when called into question by attempted locators on land alleged to be in New Mexico.

From which it seems clear—

(1) That irrespective of the correct astronomical location of the one hundred and third meridian between latitude 36.30 and latitude 32, the Clark lines, as run and marked on the ground, both by formal legislative adoption in 1891 by both governments and by long exercise of sovereignty by the State and acquiescence by the United States, constitute the true boundary and can not be changed.

(2) That the Twitchell-Howell line, run and marked on the ground in 1892, connecting the termini of the Clark lines, follows the rule of law applicable to such cases, and its adoption by the State of Texas and the acquiescence therein by the United States, and the intervening of numerous private property rights with reference thereto, constitute the true boundary.

(3) That the enabling act to admit New Mexico into the Union as a State in no wise changes the status of this boundary, and as the United States have formally adopted and confirmed 254 miles of it and are estopped by long acquiescence from setting up any adverse claim as to the other 56 miles run and marked in 1892, New Mexico, as a State, will be concluded by the acts of her predecessor in sovereignty.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, December 21, 1910.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

The Chaplain, Rev. Henry N. Couden, D. D., delivered the following prayer:

Our Father in heaven, we lift up our hearts in gratitude to Thee for the Yuletide season which mellows the hearts of men, strengthens the home ties, and makes the whole world akin. For we are reminded that out of the depths of Thine own loving heart came nineteen hundred years ago Thine own best gift to the world, heralded by the angelic choir, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." Write, O we beseech Thee, in letters of gold, this truth upon our hearts, Fatherhood, brotherhood, that war shall come no more, and peace reign supreme now and always on all the face of the earth.

Be with us as we separate to celebrate the lesson of love to Thee and our fellowmen and bring us together at the appointed time without the loss of any, better prepared to do the work Thou hast given us to do, in the spirit of the Prince of Peace. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

CODIFICATION OF LAWS RELATING TO THE JUDICIARY.

The SPEAKER. This being calendar Wednesday, the Clerk will report the unfinished business.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 23377) to codify, revise, and amend the laws relating to the judiciary.

The Clerk proceeded with the reading of the bill, and read as follows:

SEC. 40. The trial of offenses punishable with death shall be had in the county where the offense was committed, where that can be done without great inconvenience.

Mr. MANN. I move to strike out the last word. That, I understand, is not a change of the existing law.

Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania. No.

Mr. MANN. But does the existing law require that offenses punishable with death, under Federal jurisdiction, shall be tried in the county where the offense was committed?

Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania. Yes; that is the old law that has stood on the statute books since 1789.

Mr. MANN. It certainly ought to be changed. I suppose the committee did not feel warranted in changing existing law.

Mr. MOON of Pennsylvania. I want to say that this section is of no value. Practically it is obsolete to provide that the trial shall be had in the county where the offense was committed, when that can be done without great inconvenience. It was kept there by a divided vote in the committee, because
